Welcome to the Prompt Library

Most people do not get weak results from AI because the tool is weak. They get weak results because the request was vague. This book fixes that part.

Inside you will find 203 prompts written around real situations — a follow-up a client ignored, a syllabus you have four days to revise, a bug you cannot reproduce, a product page that is not converting. Each one is written to be copied, edited with your own details, and reused.

“Better prompts.
A smarter you.”

WHAT THIS BOOK IS

A working reference. Open it when you have a task in front of you, take the closest prompt, and adapt it.

WHAT IT IS NOT

A list of one-line tricks. Nothing here is padding, and no prompt repeats another with different wording.

Let's get started.

— Team Stively

Get the most out of this book

01

Pick the part that matches your goal

Use the contents page, or the Start Here page if you are not sure where you belong.

02

Find the prompt closest to your task

Every prompt states who it is for and when to use it, so you can scan quickly.

03

Replace the placeholders with your details

Anything in [SQUARE BRACKETS] is yours to fill in. The more real detail you give, the better the output.

04

Paste it into the AI tool you already use

These prompts are tool-agnostic. They work in ChatGPT, Claude, Gemini, Copilot and most assistants.

05

Push for a second pass

The first answer is a draft. Ask for a tighter version, a different angle, or a critique of its own output.

TIP

Treat every prompt as a starting point, not a script. Adding one sentence of your own context usually improves the answer more than rewriting the whole prompt.

Ten prompting principles worth knowing

These five explain why the prompts in this book are written the way they are.

01 Give the situation, not just the task

“Write a follow-up email” has no constraints. “Follow up with a client who went quiet five days after a proposal, under 100 words, not desperate” has four. Constraints are what make output usable.

02 Name the output format

Table, checklist, three options, 150 words, subject line plus body. If you do not specify shape, you get an essay and then edit it by hand.

03 Ask for options, then choose

Three variations with different angles beats one polished answer. You can judge much faster than you can brief.

04 Say what to avoid

No buzzwords, no fake statistics, no exclamation marks, do not invent experience I do not have. Negative constraints remove most of the rewriting.

05 Paste the source material

Your notes, the job description, the error log, the transcript. A prompt with real input beats a clever prompt with none.

And five that make the difference

06 Assign a role only when it changes the answer

“Act as a hiring manager for this role” is useful because it sets a standard of judgement. “Act as a world-class genius” sets nothing.

07 Work in steps for anything complex

Analyse, then plan, then draft. One mega-prompt that asks for all three usually does all three shallowly.

08 Make it critique itself

“List the three weakest parts of your answer and fix them” is the cheapest quality upgrade available.

09 Ask it to ask you

“Before answering, ask me up to five questions you need answered.” This one line prevents most generic output.

10 Keep the prompts that worked

Save your edited version with your own context filled in. A personal library of twenty working prompts beats a thousand you never reuse.

ONE LINE TO REMEMBER

Role · Context · Task · Constraints · Format. If an answer disappoints you, one of those five was missing.

Study & Learning

Learn faster. Understand better.

Prompts for the actual work of studying: breaking a hard concept into something you can explain, turning notes into recall practice, and planning revision around a real deadline.

IN THIS PART YOU'LL FIND PROMPTS FOR

- ✓ Concept Understanding
- ✓ Exam Preparation
- ✓ Practice Questions
- ✓ Research & Presentations
- ✓ Study Planning
- ✓ Active Recall
- ✓ Notes & Summaries
- ✓ Difficult Subjects
- ✓ Language Learning
- ✓ Learning Habits

Best for: School and college students, self-learners · Prompts #001 – #044

Prompt #001

CONCEPT UNDERSTANDING

Explain It Three Ways

Best for: Students of any subject

Use this when: You have read a definition twice and still cannot picture it.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Explain [CONCEPT] three times: first to a 12-year-old using an everyday analogy, then to a first-year student of [SUBJECT] with correct terminology, then in the four sentences a professor would accept as a complete answer. After the three versions, list the one thing beginners most often get wrong about it, and end with a 3-question self-test that would catch that mistake in me.”

CUSTOMIZE

[CONCEPT] — what you’re stuck on

[SUBJECT] — your course

NEXT MOVE — SEND THIS AFTER THE FIRST ANSWER

“Now mark my own explanation of [CONCEPT] against your four-sentence version. Show a two-column table: what I said, what a complete answer says. Rate my understanding out of 10 and tell me the single sentence I should add to make it exam-ready. My version: [PASTE]”

PRO TIP

If the analogy is the only version you remember, ask for a second analogy from a field you already know well.

Prompt #002

CONCEPT UNDERSTANDING

Find My Actual Gap

Best for: Students revising a hard chapter

Use this when: You keep getting questions wrong but cannot tell why.

COPY-READY PROMPT

"I am studying [TOPIC]. Below is my own explanation of it in my words. Do not correct my writing style. Instead, identify exactly which parts show a genuine misunderstanding, which parts are correct but incomplete, and which parts are fine. For each misunderstanding, explain the correct idea in two sentences and give me one question that would test whether I have fixed it. Then rank my misunderstandings by how much they will cost me in an exam, and tell me in one line what to re-read first. My explanation: [PASTE]"

CUSTOMIZE

[TOPIC] — the chapter

[PASTE] — your own explanation

NEXT MOVE — SEND THIS AFTER THE FIRST ANSWER

"I have re-read the parts you flagged. Ask me your test questions one at a time, hardest first. After each answer, say only 'fixed' or 'still shaky' plus one corrective line — no long explanations until I have answered all of them."

PRO TIP

Write your explanation from memory, not from the book. The errors are the point.

Prompt #003

CONCEPT UNDERSTANDING

Why Does This Even Exist

Best for: Students who find a topic pointless

Use this when: You cannot stay interested because the topic feels abstract.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Explain what problem [CONCEPT] was invented to solve, what people did badly before it existed, and two situations where it is used today that a student of [SUBJECT] would find surprising. Then finish with the sentence that begins ‘If this did not exist, you would have to...’. Keep it under 250 words and avoid historical trivia that does not help me understand the idea.”

CUSTOMIZE

[CONCEPT] — the topic [SUBJECT] — your field

NEXT MOVE — SEND THIS AFTER THE FIRST ANSWER

“Now connect it forward: which later topics in [SUBJECT] assume I have understood [CONCEPT], and what specifically breaks in my understanding of those topics if this one is shaky? List them in the order they appear in a typical syllabus.”

Prompt #004

CONCEPT UNDERSTANDING

Confusing Pair Separator

Best for: Students mixing up similar terms
Use this when: Two terms keep blurring together in your head.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“I keep confusing [TERM A] and [TERM B] in [SUBJECT]. Build a comparison table with these columns: definition in one line, what it does, when you use it, a worked mini example, and the giveaway clue in an exam question that tells me which one is being asked about. Then give me three exam-style statements and let me label each as [TERM A], [TERM B] or both, before you reveal the answers. End with one sentence I can memorise that separates them permanently.”

CUSTOMIZE

[TERM A] — first term [TERM B] — second term

NEXT MOVE — SEND THIS AFTER THE FIRST ANSWER

“Give me five harder discrimination questions on the same pair, where the wording deliberately points toward the wrong one. After I answer, explain the cue in each question I should have noticed.”

Prompt #005

CONCEPT UNDERSTANDING

Feynman Check

Best for: Self-learners

Use this when: You want to know whether you truly understand something.

COPY-READY PROMPT

"I am going to explain [TOPIC] to you as if you were a beginner. Act as a curious beginner who asks the obvious follow-up questions I am most likely to be unable to answer. Ask one question at a time, up to six, then tell me which of my answers were shaky and what to re-study, in priority order. Do not accept an answer that only restates my earlier words in different form — push once more when I do that. Here is my explanation: [PASTE]"

CUSTOMIZE

[TOPIC] — the topic

[PASTE] — your explanation

NEXT MOVE — SEND THIS AFTER THE FIRST ANSWER

"Based on where I collapsed, write the 150-word explanation I should have been able to give, then a five-item checklist of what a complete explanation of this topic must contain."

Prompt #006

CONCEPT UNDERSTANDING

Formula Decoder

Best for: Science, maths and engineering students

Use this when: You can use a formula but do not know what it means.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Take this formula: [FORMULA], from [SUBJECT]. Explain what each symbol represents and its unit, what the formula is really saying in one plain sentence, what happens to the result if each variable increases, and two common mistakes students make when applying it. Then give me one worked example with real numbers, and a second example where the formula does not apply, with the reason why.”

CUSTOMIZE

[FORMULA] — the formula [SUBJECT] — the course

NEXT MOVE — SEND THIS AFTER THE FIRST ANSWER

“Now give me three problems using [FORMULA] where the difficulty is choosing the right variable, not the arithmetic. Let me attempt each before you respond, and when you do, comment only on my setup — not my final number.”

Prompt #007

CONCEPT UNDERSTANDING

From Example to Rule

Best for: Learners who understand cases but not principles

Use this when: You can follow solved examples but freeze on new problems.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Here are three solved problems from [TOPIC]: [PASTE]. Work backwards and tell me the underlying method they share, expressed as a step-by-step procedure I could apply to an unfamiliar problem. Then give me one new problem that uses the same method but looks different on the surface, and let me try it before showing the solution. When I answer, tell me which step of your procedure I skipped rather than simply marking me wrong.”

CUSTOMIZE

[TOPIC] — the chapter

[PASTE] — solved examples

NEXT MOVE — SEND THIS AFTER THE FIRST ANSWER

“Turn the method into a decision tree I can follow under exam pressure: at each step, the question I ask myself and what to do for each answer. Keep it to one page and no more than six decision points.”

Prompt #008

ACTIVE RECALL

Notes Into Recall Questions

Best for: Students with pages of notes

Use this when: Your notes are done but reading them is not making them stick.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Turn the notes below into 20 active recall questions. Mix them: 8 factual, 6 that require applying the idea to a new situation, 4 that ask me to compare or distinguish, 2 that ask me to explain why something is true. Number them, put all answers at the end, and do not ask anything the notes do not actually cover, and mark any question whose answer my notes state only partially.
Notes: [PASTE]”

CUSTOMIZE

[PASTE] — your notes

NEXT MOVE — SEND THIS AFTER THE FIRST ANSWER

“Quiz me on those 20 questions in four rounds of five, hardest last. Track my score per round and, at the end, tell me which of the four question types I am weakest at and what that says about how I studied this topic.”

PRO TIP

Answer them out loud before looking. If you cannot say it, you cannot write it.

Prompt #009

ACTIVE RECALL

Flashcard Set Builder

Best for: Anyone using Anki or Quizlet

Use this when: You want flashcards that are not just definitions.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Create [NUMBER] flashcards on [TOPIC] in the format Front | Back, ready to paste into Anki. Rules: one idea per card, no card longer than 25 words on the back, no question answerable by yes or no. Include a mix of definitions, applications, and ‘what breaks if this is wrong’ cards. Avoid cards that only test vocabulary, and tag each card with its subtopic so I can study one section at a time.”

CUSTOMIZE

[NUMBER] — how many

[TOPIC] — the subject

NEXT MOVE — SEND THIS AFTER THE FIRST ANSWER

“Review your own card set: flag any two cards that test the same thing, any card whose answer I could guess from the wording of the front, and any card that is really two cards. Replace the ones you flag.”

PRO TIP

Ask for cards to be tagged by subtopic so you can study one section at a time.

Prompt #010

ACTIVE RECALL

Blurting Reviewer

Best for: Students using the blurt method

Use this when: You wrote everything you remember and need it checked.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Below is everything I could remember about [TOPIC] without looking at my notes. Compare it against what a complete answer on this topic should contain. Output three lists: what I got right, what I stated incorrectly, and what I completely missed. Rank the missing items by how likely they are to appear in an exam. Do not rewrite my notes for me, and do not soften the ‘completely missed’ list. My recall: [PASTE]”

CUSTOMIZE

[TOPIC] — the topic

[PASTE] — your blurt

NEXT MOVE — SEND THIS AFTER THE FIRST ANSWER

“I will blurt this topic again tomorrow. Before that, give me only the minimum reading list from my missed items — the three things worth 15 minutes — and hold back the rest until I have closed those.”

Prompt #011

ACTIVE RECALL

Spaced Repetition Schedule

Best for: Students with a long syllabus

Use this when: You learn topics and forget them before the exam.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“I have [NUMBER] topics to retain until my exam on [DATE]: [LIST]. Build a spaced repetition review schedule that fits [MINUTES] minutes a day. Each day should mix one new topic with reviews of older ones at increasing intervals. Output as a table of date, new topic, review topics, and expected minutes. Assume I will miss two days somewhere and build slack for that, and tell me the rule for what to drop first if I fall further behind.”

CUSTOMIZE

[LIST] — your topics

[DATE] — exam date

[MINUTES] — daily time

NEXT MOVE — SEND THIS AFTER THE FIRST ANSWER

“I missed [NUMBER] days. Rebuild the remaining schedule from today without extending the end date, and tell me explicitly which reviews I am now sacrificing and what that costs me.”

Prompt #012

ACTIVE RECALL

Teach-Back Quiz Master

Best for: Students preparing for vivas

Use this when: You want to be questioned, not lectured.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Quiz me on [TOPIC] one question at a time. After each of my answers, rate it out of 5, tell me what was missing in one line, and then ask a harder follow-up if I scored 4 or more, or an easier clarifying question if I scored below 3. Continue for 15 questions, then give me a summary of my weak areas with a score per subtopic. Do not reveal answers unless I ask, and do not tell me I am doing well when I am not.”

CUSTOMIZE

[TOPIC] — the subject

NEXT MOVE — SEND THIS AFTER THE FIRST ANSWER

“Take my three weakest subtopics and build a 45-minute repair session: what to read, in what order, and the five questions I must be able to answer before I stop.”

Prompt #013

EXAM PREPARATION

Exam Preparation Plan

Best for: Students with a fixed exam date

Use this when: You want a realistic study plan instead of a wish list.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“I am preparing for [EXAM NAME] on [DATE]. My current level is [BEGINNER / INTERMEDIATE / ADVANCED] and I can study [HOURS] hours on weekdays and [HOURS] on weekends. The syllabus is: [PASTE]. Build a day-by-day plan that allocates more time to heavy-weight and weak topics, includes revision days and two full practice attempts, and ends with a light final day. Output as a table. Flag any topic you think I will not finish in time rather than compressing everything, and mark the three days where falling behind would be most expensive.”

CUSTOMIZE

[EXAM NAME] — your exam

[DATE] — exam date

[PASTE] — syllabus

NEXT MOVE — SEND THIS AFTER THE FIRST ANSWER

“Convert the plan into a daily checklist I can tick, with a target for each day stated as something I can verify — a number of problems solved or a topic I can explain without notes — rather than hours spent.”

PRO TIP

Ask for the same plan again as a Google Sheets-ready table with a progress column.

Prompt #014

EXAM PREPARATION

Past Paper Pattern Finder

Best for: Students with previous question papers

Use this when: You have old papers but no strategy.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Below are questions from the last [NUMBER] years of [EXAM NAME]: [PASTE]. Identify which topics repeat most often, which question types dominate the marks, and which topics have appeared only once. Then tell me where my preparation hours are best spent and which topics are safe to study lightly. Base this only on the questions I pasted — do not guess about years I did not give you — and state how confident the pattern is given how few years I provided.”

CUSTOMIZE

[PASTE] — past questions

[EXAM NAME] — your exam

NEXT MOVE — SEND THIS AFTER THE FIRST ANSWER

“Now build a two-hour practice set drawn from the highest-frequency patterns you found, ordered so the most repeated topic comes first, and tell me the mark I should be scoring on it to be on track.”

Prompt #015

EXAM PREPARATION

Marks-Per-Hour Triage

Best for: Students short on time

Use this when: There are three days left and the syllabus is not finished.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“I have [DAYS] days until [EXAM NAME] and cannot finish everything. Here is the syllabus with mark weightings and my confidence level from 1 to 5 for each topic: [PASTE]. Rank topics by expected marks gained per hour of study, and give me a study order. Be explicit about what I should deliberately skip and what the risk of skipping it is, expressed as marks I am choosing to leave on the table.”

CUSTOMIZE

[DAYS] — days left [PASTE] — topics + confidence

NEXT MOVE — SEND THIS AFTER THE FIRST ANSWER

“Given the topics I am keeping, write my hour-by-hour plan for the [DAYS] days, including sleep and one buffer block, and tell me what to do on the morning of the exam.”

Prompt #016

EXAM PREPARATION

Answer Structure Coach

Best for: Students writing long-answer exams

Use this when: You know the content but lose marks on presentation.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“For [SUBJECT] exams with [MARKS]-mark long answers, show me the ideal structure of a full-marks answer: opening definition, body, diagram or example placement, and conclusion, with a suggested word count and time budget for each part. Then apply that structure to this question as a model answer: [QUESTION]. Mark in the margin where the examiner is most likely awarding points, and show a weak version of the same answer alongside so I can see what loses marks.”

CUSTOMIZE

[SUBJECT] — the paper

[QUESTION] — a real question

NEXT MOVE — SEND THIS AFTER THE FIRST ANSWER

“I will now write my own answer to a similar question. Mark it strictly against that structure, show the marks lost per section, and rewrite only my weakest paragraph as a demonstration.”

Prompt #017

EXAM PREPARATION

Mock Paper Generator

Best for: Students who have run out of practice papers
Use this when: You need a fresh paper in the real format.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Create a full mock paper for [EXAM NAME] following this exact format: [DESCRIBE SECTIONS, MARKS, TIME]. Cover the syllabus proportionally, vary difficulty realistically, and include one question that combines two topics. Give me only the paper first. Provide the marking scheme in a separate message when I ask for it, and note the intended time per section so I can sit it under real conditions.”

CUSTOMIZE

- [EXAM NAME] — the exam
- [DESCRIBE SECTIONS...] — paper format

NEXT MOVE — SEND THIS AFTER THE FIRST ANSWER

“Here are my answers to your mock paper: [PASTE]. Mark them against your scheme section by section, give me a total, and tell me which two topics my score says I should revise before attempting another paper.”

Prompt #018

EXAM PREPARATION

Mistake Autopsy

Best for: Students after a mock test

Use this when: You scored badly and want more than a score.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Here are the questions I got wrong in my mock test for [SUBJECT], with my answers: [PASTE]. For each one, classify the cause: concept not understood, concept understood but misapplied, careless error, misread question, or ran out of time. Then group the causes and tell me the two behaviour changes that would recover the most marks next time, with an estimate of the marks each would have saved in this paper.”

CUSTOMIZE

[PASTE] — wrong answers

[SUBJECT] — the paper

NEXT MOVE — SEND THIS AFTER THE FIRST ANSWER

“Design the exam-day routine that prevents my most common cause: what I do in the first five minutes with the paper, how I allocate time, and the checks I run in the last ten minutes.”

PRO TIP

Keep a running list of these causes. Most students lose marks to the same two every time.

Prompt #019

NOTES & SUMMARIES

Lecture Transcript To Notes

Best for: Students recording classes

Use this when: You have a long transcript and 20 minutes.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Turn this lecture transcript into study notes for [SUBJECT]. Structure: topic heading, key ideas as short bullets, definitions box, worked example if one was given, and a final ‘likely exam points’ section. Keep the lecturer’s emphasis — if something was repeated or called important, mark it. Drop small talk and admin. Mark anything the lecturer said that contradicts or extends the textbook, since that is usually what appears in their paper. Transcript: [PASTE]”

CUSTOMIZE

[PASTE] — transcript

[SUBJECT] — the course

NEXT MOVE — SEND THIS AFTER THE FIRST ANSWER

“From these notes, generate the six questions this lecturer is most likely to set, based on what they emphasised and how they phrased things, and say what evidence in the transcript supports each prediction.”

Prompt #020

NOTES & SUMMARIES

Textbook Chapter Compressor

Best for: Students with dense reading

Use this when: A 40-page chapter needs to become two usable pages.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Summarise the chapter text below into two pages of notes for a [LEVEL] student. Preserve every definition, formula and named model exactly as written. Compress the explanatory prose, examples and repetition. Use headings that match the chapter's own structure, and end with five questions the chapter answers plus two it raises but does not answer. Text: [PASTE]”

CUSTOMIZE

[LEVEL] — your level

[PASTE] — chapter text

NEXT MOVE — SEND THIS AFTER THE FIRST ANSWER

“Now compress those two pages to a single page for final revision, keeping only what I could not reconstruct from first principles. Tell me what you removed so I can check I agree.”

Prompt #021

NOTES & SUMMARIES

One-Page Cheat Sheet

Best for: Students before an exam

Use this when: You want the whole topic on one printable page.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Condense [TOPIC] into a single-page revision sheet. Include: all formulas with variable meanings, key definitions in under 15 words each, one diagram described in text, the three most common exam traps, and a five-item final check list. No introductions, no filler sentences. Prioritise things that are hard to remember over things that are easy, and tell me what you left off and why.”

CUSTOMIZE

[TOPIC] — the topic

NEXT MOVE — SEND THIS AFTER THE FIRST ANSWER

“Turn the sheet into a 10-minute pre-exam read: the order I should read it in, and the four items I should copy out from memory as a final check.”

Prompt #022

NOTES & SUMMARIES

Notes Gap Audit

Best for: Students who missed classes
Use this when: Your notes have holes you cannot see.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Below are my notes for [TOPIC], and here is the official syllabus or chapter list for the same topic: [PASTE BOTH]. Tell me which syllabus points my notes cover well, which are covered too thinly to revise from, and which are missing entirely. Output as a table with a priority column and an estimated time to fix each gap. Do not add content — just audit.”

CUSTOMIZE

[PASTE BOTH] — notes + syllabus

NEXT MOVE — SEND THIS AFTER THE FIRST ANSWER

“Now fill only the top three gaps, in the same note style and level of detail as my existing notes, and mark clearly where you are using general knowledge rather than my source material.”

Prompt #023

PRACTICE QUESTIONS

Difficulty Ladder

Best for: Students building toward exam level
Use this when: Textbook questions are either too easy or too hard.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Give me eight practice problems on [TOPIC], ordered from easy to exam-level, where each one introduces exactly one new complication compared to the previous. State the new complication in brackets after each question. Give solutions only after I have attempted them, and when you do, show the reasoning step I was most likely to get wrong, and name the complication that step was testing.”

CUSTOMIZE

[TOPIC] — the topic

NEXT MOVE — SEND THIS AFTER THE FIRST ANSWER

“Give me three more problems at the level where I first struggled, not at the top of the ladder. When I clear all three, move me up one step and say so.”

Prompt #024

PRACTICE QUESTIONS

Trap Question Trainer

Best for: Students in competitive exams

Use this when: You keep falling for questions designed to mislead.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Write ten multiple-choice questions on [TOPIC] at [EXAM] level where every wrong option represents a specific, realistic misunderstanding. After the answer key, explain for each distractor which misconception a student holds if they pick it, and how the question wording was designed to trigger it. Do not use obviously silly options.”

CUSTOMIZE

[TOPIC] — the topic

[EXAM] — exam standard

NEXT MOVE — SEND THIS AFTER THE FIRST ANSWER

“I picked these options: [PASTE]. For each mistake, tell me whether it was a knowledge gap or a reading error, and give me the one habit that would have prevented the reading errors.”

Prompt #025

PRACTICE QUESTIONS

Show Me Where I Broke

Best for: Maths and physics students

Use this when: Your answer is wrong and you cannot find the step.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Here is the problem and my full working: [PASTE]. Find the first step where I went wrong, and stop there. Explain what I did, what the correct move is, and why my move is tempting. Do not solve the rest — I want to finish it myself. Also tell me whether this looks like a concept error, a method error or an arithmetic slip.”

CUSTOMIZE

[PASTE] — problem + working

NEXT MOVE — SEND THIS AFTER THE FIRST ANSWER

“Here is my corrected working from that step onwards: [PASTE]. Check only the steps after your correction, and tell me whether my method is now sound even if my final number differs.”

PRO TIP

Asking it to stop at the first error stops you from reading a full solution and learning nothing.

Prompt #026

PRACTICE QUESTIONS

Numerical Practice From Theory

Best for: Students with only theory notes

Use this when: Your material has no numerical questions.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Based on this theory content about [TOPIC]: [PASTE], create six numerical problems with realistic values and units, ranging from single-step to multi-step. Ensure each problem is solvable using only the content I pasted. Provide answers with intermediate values so I can check where my number diverges, and state the units at every stage.”

CUSTOMIZE

[TOPIC] — the topic [PASTE] — theory notes

NEXT MOVE — SEND THIS AFTER THE FIRST ANSWER

“Add a twist to two of those problems — a missing value I have to derive, or a unit I have to convert first — and tell me what real-world situation each twist represents.”

Prompt #027

Prerequisite Backfill

Best for: Students lost in an advanced course

Use this when: A topic feels impossible because something earlier is missing.

COPY-READY PROMPT

"I am struggling with [TOPIC] in [SUBJECT]. Work backwards and list the prerequisite ideas it depends on, in learning order. For each, give me a two-question diagnostic to check whether I actually have it. Then tell me to start at the earliest one I fail, not at the topic itself, and estimate how long backfilling that prerequisite should take."

CUSTOMIZE

[TOPIC] — what you're stuck on

NEXT MOVE — SEND THIS AFTER THE FIRST ANSWER

"Ask me the diagnostic questions in order, starting from the earliest prerequisite. Stop at the first one I fail and teach only that, then re-test me before moving on."

PRO TIP

Most 'I'm bad at this subject' problems are one missing prerequisite two chapters back.

Prompt #028

Maths Anxiety Reframe

Best for: Students who freeze on quantitative work

Use this when: You avoid a subject because starting feels awful.

COPY-READY PROMPT

"I avoid studying [SUBJECT] because I freeze when I start. Give me a 20-minute starting routine that begins with something almost too easy and escalates, so that I am working before I have time to panic. Include what to do when I get stuck for more than five minutes, and what to do on a day when I genuinely cannot start. Keep it practical, not motivational."

CUSTOMIZE

[SUBJECT] — the subject

NEXT MOVE — SEND THIS AFTER THE FIRST ANSWER

"I followed the routine for a week and here is what happened: [PASTE]. Tell me which part of the routine is failing and change only that part — do not redesign the whole thing."

Prompt #029

Jargon Translator

Best for: Students reading advanced material

Use this when: The words are the obstacle, not the ideas.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Below is a passage from [SOURCE] that I find impenetrable. Rewrite it in plain language at the level of a [LEVEL] student, keeping every technical term but defining it inline the first time it appears. Then list the terms in a glossary with one-line meanings. Do not simplify away the actual claims, and flag any sentence in the original whose meaning is genuinely ambiguous rather than just difficult. Passage: [PASTE]”

CUSTOMIZE

[PASTE] — the passage

[LEVEL] — your level

NEXT MOVE — SEND THIS AFTER THE FIRST ANSWER

“Now test me: ask four questions that can only be answered by someone who understood the passage rather than the simplified version, and tell me where my answers relied on the simplification.”

Prompt #030

RESEARCH & PRESENTATIONS

Assignment Question Decoder

Best for: Students with a vague assignment brief

Use this when: You are not sure what the question is actually asking for.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Here is my assignment question and the marking rubric: [PASTE]. Tell me exactly what is being asked, what the command words require me to do, what a top-band answer does that a middle-band answer does not, and what I might waste words on. Then give me three possible angles for my answer with the strongest one marked, and say what each angle requires me to have read or researched.”

CUSTOMIZE

[PASTE] — question + rubric

NEXT MOVE — SEND THIS AFTER THE FIRST ANSWER

“I am choosing angle [NUMBER]. Stress-test it: what would a marker challenge, what evidence do I still need, and what is the strongest counter-argument I must address to stay in the top band?”

Prompt #031

RESEARCH & PRESENTATIONS

Assignment Outline Builder

Best for: Students starting a long assignment

Use this when: You have research but no structure.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“I am writing a [WORD COUNT]-word [ASSIGNMENT TYPE] on [TOPIC] for a [LEVEL] course. My material and argument so far: [PASTE]. Build an outline with section headings, the point each section must prove, the evidence from my material that supports it, and a word budget per section. Flag any section where my evidence is currently too thin to defend, and tell me what kind of source would fix it.”

CUSTOMIZE

[WORD COUNT] — length [TOPIC] — your topic [PASTE] — your material

NEXT MOVE — SEND THIS AFTER THE FIRST ANSWER

“Write the opening paragraph and the topic sentence of every section from that outline, so I can see whether the argument holds before I write the body. Do not write the body.”

Prompt #032

RESEARCH & PRESENTATIONS

Presentation From Notes

Best for: Students presenting coursework

Use this when: You have to present in a week and have raw material.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Turn my material on [TOPIC] into a [NUMBER]-slide presentation plan for a [MINUTES]-minute talk to [AUDIENCE]. For each slide give: the headline, the three points maximum on the slide, what I say that is not on the slide, and what visual belongs there. Keep text on slides minimal, and tell me which two slides carry the whole argument so I know what to protect if I run short of time. Material: [PASTE]”

CUSTOMIZE

[NUMBER] — slides

[MINUTES] — talk length

[AUDIENCE] — who's watching

NEXT MOVE — SEND THIS AFTER THE FIRST ANSWER

“Now write the spoken script for my two most important slides in natural speaking language, and give me the transition sentence into and out of each.”

Prompt #033

RESEARCH & PRESENTATIONS

Viva Question Predictor

Best for: Students defending a project

Use this when: You submitted a project and now have to defend it.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Here is the abstract and method of my project: [PASTE]. Act as a strict examiner and give me the 12 questions I am most likely to be asked, including the two most uncomfortable ones about limitations of my method. For each, note what the examiner is really testing and a framework for answering honestly. Do not invent results I did not report, and rank the questions by how likely they are to expose a real weakness rather than by topic.”

CUSTOMIZE

[PASTE] — abstract + method

NEXT MOVE — SEND THIS AFTER THE FIRST ANSWER

“Interview me on your five hardest questions, one at a time, pushing back once on each answer. Afterwards, tell me which answer would have damaged my grade and rewrite it with me.”

Prompt #034

LANGUAGE LEARNING

Conversation Partner With Corrections

Best for: Language learners

Use this when: You want to practise speaking without a tutor.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Let's have a conversation in [LANGUAGE] at [LEVEL] level about [TOPIC]. Reply in [LANGUAGE] only, two to three sentences at a time, and always end with a question. After each of my messages, add a short correction block below your reply listing my mistakes with the fix and a one-line reason. Do not correct inside the conversation itself, and gradually raise the difficulty of your vocabulary as I improve within the session.”

CUSTOMIZE

[LANGUAGE] — target language

[LEVEL] — A1–C1

[TOPIC] — subject

NEXT MOVE — SEND THIS AFTER THE FIRST ANSWER

“Summarise the mistakes I made across this whole conversation, group them into patterns rather than incidents, and give me the three drills that would fix the most common pattern.”

Prompt #035

LANGUAGE LEARNING

Vocabulary In Context

Best for: Language learners past the basics

Use this when: Word lists are not turning into speech.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Give me 15 [LANGUAGE] words or phrases used by native speakers when talking about [SITUATION]. For each: the word, a literal meaning, how it is actually used, one example sentence, and a note if it is informal or regional. Then write a short dialogue using at least ten of them, with a translation below and a note on which two phrases are the most useful to memorise first.”

CUSTOMIZE

[LANGUAGE] — language

[SITUATION] — e.g. ordering food

NEXT MOVE — SEND THIS AFTER THE FIRST ANSWER

“Quiz me on those 15 items in context: give me a situation in [LANGUAGE] and ask which phrase fits, not what it means. Correct me with the natural alternative if mine is understandable but not idiomatic.”

Prompt #036

LANGUAGE LEARNING

Grammar Point On Demand

Best for: Language learners

Use this when: One grammar rule keeps tripping you up.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Explain [GRAMMAR POINT] in [LANGUAGE] for a speaker of [YOUR LANGUAGE]. Cover the rule in plain terms, the two or three cases where learners get it wrong because their own language works differently, and five example sentences from simple to natural. Then quiz me with eight fill-in-the-blank sentences, one at a time, mixing in two where the rule does not apply so I have to notice.”

CUSTOMIZE

[GRAMMAR POINT] — the rule

[YOUR LANGUAGE] — your first language

NEXT MOVE — SEND THIS AFTER THE FIRST ANSWER

“Now make me produce it rather than recognise it: give me six English sentences to translate that force this grammar point, and correct only the structure I am practising.”

Prompt #037

STUDY PLANNING

Semester Load Balancer

Best for: Students juggling multiple courses

Use this when: Deadlines from five courses are colliding.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Here are my courses, assignment deadlines, exam dates and weekly class hours: [PASTE]. Build a week-by-week plan for the semester that spreads assignment work backwards from deadlines, protects the two weeks before exams for revision, and never schedules more than [HOURS] hours of study in a week. Show collisions you could not resolve instead of hiding them, and tell me which deadline to negotiate or which course to deliberately take a lower grade in.”

CUSTOMIZE

[PASTE] — courses + dates

[HOURS] — weekly limit

NEXT MOVE — SEND THIS AFTER THE FIRST ANSWER

“Turn week one into a concrete daily plan, and give me the rule I should follow when an unexpected commitment lands mid-week so I do not have to re-plan the whole semester.”

Prompt #038

STUDY PLANNING

Realistic Daily Schedule

Best for: Students with jobs or long commutes

Use this when: Study plans keep failing because they ignore your real day.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“My day looks like this: [DESCRIBE, INCLUDING CLASSES, WORK, TRAVEL, MEALS AND SLEEP]. Find the genuinely usable study blocks, including short ones, and tell me what type of study suits each block — deep work, review, flashcards, or listening. Do not propose waking up earlier or removing sleep. Output as a timetable for one weekday and one weekend day, and mark which blocks are protected and which are expendable when something goes wrong.”

CUSTOMIZE

[DESCRIBE...] — your real day

NEXT MOVE — SEND THIS AFTER THE FIRST ANSWER

“Now build the 60% version of this plan — what I keep when the week goes badly — and tell me which single block I should never sacrifice.”

PRO TIP

Ask it to redo the plan assuming you only manage 60% of it. That version is the one you will follow.

Prompt #039

STUDY PLANNING

Group Study Agenda

Best for: Study groups

Use this when: Group sessions turn into conversation.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Design a 90-minute study session agenda for [NUMBER] students covering [TOPIC]. Include a timed structure with a quick individual recall round, a teach-each-other round with topics assigned per person, a problem-solving round, and a closing gap list. Specify who does what and what to prepare beforehand, plus the two rules that stop the session drifting into conversation.”

CUSTOMIZE

[NUMBER] — group size

[TOPIC] — the topic

NEXT MOVE — SEND THIS AFTER THE FIRST ANSWER

“Write the material for the teach-each-other round: for each assigned subtopic, the three points that person must cover and the two questions the others should ask them.”

Prompt #040

Weekly Study Review

Best for: Any learner

Use this when: Weeks pass and you cannot tell if you progressed.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Ask me six questions about my study week, one at a time: what I planned, what I actually completed, where time went, what felt hard, what stuck, and what is at risk. After my answers, give me an honest two-paragraph assessment and three specific changes for next week. Do not be encouraging if the answers do not warrant it, and compare this week against what I told you last week if I paste it in.”

NEXT MOVE — SEND THIS AFTER THE FIRST ANSWER

“Turn your three changes into a one-page plan for next week with a specific day and time for each, and tell me how I will know by Wednesday whether it is working.”

PRO TIP

Run this on the same day each week. The comparison across weeks is where it becomes useful.

Prompt #041

LEARNING HABITS

Study Session Warm-Up

Best for: Students who procrastinate

Use this when: You sit down and open your phone instead.

COPY-READY PROMPT

"Give me a five-minute warm-up routine for a study session on [SUBJECT] that requires no decisions from me: exactly what to write, read or recall in minutes one to five, ending with me already inside the first task. Then give me a two-minute shutdown routine that makes tomorrow's start easier, including the one note I should leave myself."

CUSTOMIZE

[SUBJECT] — the subject

NEXT MOVE — SEND THIS AFTER THE FIRST ANSWER

"Design the version of this warm-up for a day when I have only 20 minutes total, and the version for when I am starting a topic I have never opened before."

Prompt #042

ACTIVE RECALL

Vague vs. Specific Study Request

Best for: Anyone learning to prompt

Use this when: You want to see why specificity matters.

WEAK REQUEST

"Help me study photosynthesis."

BETTER PROMPT

"I have a Class 11 biology test on photosynthesis in four days and I understand the light-dependent reaction but not the Calvin cycle. Quiz me on the Calvin cycle only, one question at a time, escalating in difficulty. After each answer, tell me in one line what was missing. After ten questions, list what I still need to revise and what I already know well enough to leave alone."

Prompt #043

STUDY PLANNING

Learn a New Subject From Zero

Best for: Self-learners starting a new field

Use this when: You want to learn something properly without a course.

STEP 01Map the field

"I want to learn [SUBJECT] to the level of [GOAL]. Give me a map of the field: the core areas, how they depend on each other, and what is optional at my level. Mark anything commonly taught that I can safely skip."

STEP 02Set the milestones

"Turn that map into five milestones, each with a concrete thing I can build, solve or explain to prove I reached it. Estimate hours per milestone at [HOURS] per week."

STEP 03Get the first week

"Give me week one in detail: what to learn each day, in what order, and what to practise. Use free or widely available resources and say why each is worth the time."

STEP 04Test and adjust

"Quiz me on milestone one. Based on my answers, tell me whether to move on or repeat, and adjust the remaining plan accordingly."

PRO TIP

Run step four at every milestone. That single loop is the difference between a plan and a course.

Prompt #044

CONCEPT UNDERSTANDING

Concept To Exam Answer

Best for: Students who understand but cannot write it

Use this when: You know the idea and still score poorly in writing.

STEP 01Understand it

“Explain [CONCEPT] at [LEVEL] with one analogy and one precise definition.”

STEP 02See the model

“Now write a full-marks [MARKS]-mark answer to this question using that concept: [QUESTION]. Annotate where marks are earned.”

STEP 03My turn

“Give me a similar question. I will answer it. Mark my answer against the same scheme and show me the mark I lost and why.”

STEP 04Lock it in “Turn the feedback into three rules I should apply to every answer in this subject.”

Prompt #045

RESUME WRITING

Experience Into Impact Bullets

Best for: Job seekers at any level

Use this when: Your resume lists duties instead of results.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Here is a description of what I did in my role as [JOB TITLE] at [COMPANY]: [PASTE]. Rewrite it as five resume bullets that lead with action and outcome. Use only facts I have given you — if a bullet would be stronger with a number I did not provide, leave a [METRIC] placeholder and tell me what to measure. Do not invent results, tools or scope.”

CUSTOMIZE

[JOB TITLE] — your role

[PASTE] — what you did

PRO TIP

The [METRIC] placeholders are the real output. Fill them from your own records before you send.

Prompt #046

RESUME WRITING

Resume For A Specific Job

Best for: Applicants targeting one role

Use this when: You are sending the same resume everywhere.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Below are my resume and a job description for [JOB TITLE] at [COMPANY]. Reorder and rewrite my resume so the most relevant experience appears first and the language matches the role, without adding anything I have not done. Then list the three requirements I cover weakly, and how I can honestly address each in the cover letter or interview. Resume: [PASTE] Job description: [PASTE]”

CUSTOMIZE

[PASTE] — resume + JD

Prompt #047

RESUME WRITING

No-Experience Resume

Best for: Students and fresh graduates

Use this when: You have no formal job experience yet.

COPY-READY PROMPT

"I am a [COURSE] student with no formal work experience, applying for [ROLE]. Here is everything I have done: coursework, projects, volunteering, freelance work, clubs, competitions: [PASTE]. Build a one-page resume structure that presents this credibly, with sections in the right order and bullets that show skill rather than padding. Be honest about what is thin and suggest one thing I could do in two weeks to strengthen it."

CUSTOMIZE

[COURSE] — your degree

[ROLE] — target job

Prompt #048

RESUME WRITING

Resume Red Flag Review

Best for: Anyone about to apply

Use this when: You want a recruiter's eye before you hit send.

COPY-READY PROMPT

"Act as a recruiter who screens 200 resumes a day for [ROLE]. Read my resume and tell me: what you understood about me in the first 8 seconds, the three things that would make you reject it, anything that looks vague or inflated, and the formatting issues that hurt readability. Be blunt. Resume: [PASTE]"

CUSTOMIZE

[ROLE] — target role

Prompt #049

RESUME WRITING

Career Gap Explanation

Best for: Returning professionals

Use this when: You have a gap and do not know how to frame it.

COPY-READY PROMPT

"I have a [DURATION] gap in my resume because of [REASON]. Write two short, honest ways to present this: one line for the resume and a three-sentence version for an interview. Keep it factual and forward-looking, with no apology and no invented activity. Then tell me what a reasonable interviewer will still want to know."

CUSTOMIZE

[DURATION] — how long

[REASON] — the real reason

Prompt #050

ATS OPTIMISATION

ATS Keyword Gap Check

Best for: Applicants filtered out before humans read

Use this when: Your applications are being auto-rejected.

COPY-READY PROMPT

"Compare my resume against this job description and list: the exact skills and terms in the JD that are missing from my resume, which of those I can legitimately claim based on my experience, and which I genuinely cannot. Suggest where to place the legitimate ones naturally. Do not suggest adding skills I do not have, and do not produce keyword-stuffed sentences. Resume: [PASTE] JD: [PASTE]"

CUSTOMIZE

[PASTE] — resume + JD

Prompt #051

ATS OPTIMISATION

Resume Format Cleanup

Best for: Applicants using designed templates

Use this when: You are not sure your file parses correctly.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Review my resume text for machine readability: flag tables, columns, graphics-dependent information, unusual section names, date formats and abbreviations that parsing systems handle badly. Then output a clean, single-column plain-text version with standard section headings that keeps all my content. Resume: [PASTE]”

Prompt #052

COVER LETTERS

Cover Letter That Is Not Generic

Best for: All applicants

Use this when: You have 20 minutes and want a letter worth reading.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Write a cover letter for [ROLE] at [COMPANY], under 250 words, in four paragraphs: why this company specifically, the most relevant thing I have actually done, how that maps to their stated need, and a plain closing. Use only my resume facts below and what the job description says. No flattery, no ‘I am passionate about’, no restating the whole resume. Resume: [PASTE] JD: [PASTE]”

CUSTOMIZE

[ROLE] — position

[COMPANY] — employer

PRO TIP

Ask for the same letter with the opening line rewritten three different ways, then keep the one that sounds like you.

Prompt #053

COVER LETTERS

Career Switch Letter

Best for: People changing field

Use this when: Your background does not obviously fit the role.

COPY-READY PROMPT

"I am moving from [CURRENT FIELD] to [TARGET ROLE]. Write a cover letter that treats my background as an asset rather than explaining it away: name the two transferable capabilities that genuinely transfer, with evidence from my experience, and address the obvious objection directly in one sentence. Under 250 words. Background: [PASTE]"

CUSTOMIZE

[CURRENT FIELD] — now

[TARGET ROLE] — next

Prompt #054

COVER LETTERS

Cold Application Email

Best for: People applying where there is no opening

Use this when: You want to approach a company that is not hiring publicly.

COPY-READY PROMPT

"Write a cold email to [NAME], [TITLE] at [COMPANY], asking about openings in [AREA]. Under 120 words, with a subject line. Open with a specific reason I am writing to them and not a mass mail, state what I can do with one piece of evidence, and end with a low-friction ask. No flattery and no attachments mentioned other than my resume. My background: [PASTE]"

CUSTOMIZE

[NAME] — recipient

[AREA] — your field

Prompt #055

LINKEDIN

LinkedIn Headline & About

Best for: Anyone job hunting

Use this when: Your profile reads like a job title and nothing else.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Write three LinkedIn headline options and one About section for me, targeting [ROLE] roles. The About should be first-person, under 150 words, state what I do, what I have actually built or delivered, what I am looking for, and how to reach me. No buzzwords like ‘passionate’, ‘results-driven’ or ‘ninja’. Facts: [PASTE]”

CUSTOMIZE

[ROLE] — target role

Prompt #056

LINKEDIN

Profile Recruiter Audit

Best for: Passive and active candidates

Use this when: Recruiters visit your profile and do not message you.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Act as a technical recruiter searching LinkedIn for [ROLE] candidates in [LOCATION]. Given my profile below, tell me: which search terms I would appear for and which I would miss, what in my profile creates doubt, and the five specific edits that would most increase inbound messages. Rank the edits by effort versus impact. Profile: [PASTE]”

CUSTOMIZE

[ROLE] — role

[LOCATION] — city

Prompt #057

LINKEDIN

Work Update Post

Best for: Professionals building visibilityUse this when: You want to post about your work without cringing.COPY-READY PROMPT

“Write a LinkedIn post about [WHAT I DID], under 180 words. Open with the specific problem, describe what I actually did in two or three steps, state the outcome, and end with one thing I would do differently. Plain language, no motivational framing, no hashtag wall, maximum three hashtags. Details: [PASTE]”

CUSTOMIZE

[WHAT I DID] — the project

Prompt #058

JOB SEARCH

Job Description Decoder

Best for: Applicants reading inflated postingsUse this when: A posting lists 15 requirements and you have 9.COPY-READY PROMPT

“Read this job description and separate the requirements into: genuinely non-negotiable, probably flexible, and wish-list padding — with your reasoning. Then, given my background below, tell me whether applying is a good use of my time and what I should emphasise if I do. JD: [PASTE] Background: [PASTE]”

Prompt #059

JOB SEARCH

Target Company List

Best for: Job seekers with no shortlist

Use this when: You are applying randomly on job boards.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“I want a [ROLE] job in [LOCATION / REMOTE], in companies of [SIZE] working on [DOMAIN]. Help me build a target list: suggest the types of companies and the search strategies to find them, the signals that a company is genuinely hiring, and a tracking table structure with columns I should fill. Do not invent specific company names, hiring status or contact details.”

CUSTOMIZE

[ROLE] — role

[DOMAIN] — industry

Prompt #060

JOB SEARCH

Application Tracker Setup

Best for: Anyone applying at volume

Use this when: You have lost track of where you applied.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Design a job application tracking system I can keep in a spreadsheet: columns, status values, follow-up timing rules, and a weekly review routine that takes under 15 minutes. Include how to record what I learned from each rejection so the tracker improves my applications rather than just logging them.”

Prompt #061

Referral Request

Best for: Candidates with weak connections

Use this when: You need a referral from someone you barely know.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Write a short message asking [NAME], who I know through [CONTEXT], for a referral to [ROLE] at [COMPANY]. Under 100 words. Make it easy to say no, include one sentence they can forward internally, and do not overstate our relationship. Then give me a one-line follow-up to send after five days of silence.”

CUSTOMIZE

[CONTEXT] — how you know them

Prompt #062

INTERVIEW PREPARATION

Interview Question Predictor

Best for: Candidates with an interview booked

Use this when: You want to prepare for the questions you will actually face.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“I have an interview for [ROLE] at [COMPANY]. Based on the job description below and my resume, identify the 15 questions I am most likely to face. Group them into technical, project-based, behavioural and HR. For each, explain what the interviewer is really evaluating and give me an answer framework based on my real experience — do not invent projects or results I do not have. JD: [PASTE] Resume: [PASTE]”

CUSTOMIZE

[ROLE] — position

[COMPANY] — employer

PRO TIP

Answer the five you dread out loud, on a timer, before you rehearse the easy ones.

Prompt #063

INTERVIEW PREPARATION

STAR Story Bank

Best for: Candidates facing behavioural rounds

Use this when: You freeze when asked for an example.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“From the experiences below, build a bank of six STAR stories covering: conflict, failure, leading without authority, tight deadline, learning something fast, and a decision with incomplete information. Keep each under 150 words, with the situation short and the result specific. Use only what I gave you and flag any category where my material is too thin. Experiences: [PASTE]”

PRO TIP

Six stories cover about forty behavioural questions. Learn the stories, not the answers.

Prompt #064

INTERVIEW PREPARATION

Weakness Answer Without Clichés

Best for: All candidates

Use this when: You need an honest answer to the weakness question.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“My genuine weakness at work is [WEAKNESS], and here is what I have done about it: [PASTE]. Write a 60-second answer that names it plainly, shows the concrete steps I took, and states where I am now — no humble-brag, no ‘I work too hard’. Then tell me what a sharp interviewer would ask next.”

CUSTOMIZE

[WEAKNESS] — the real thing

Prompt #065

INTERVIEW PREPARATION

Company Research Brief

Best for: Candidates before a final round

Use this when: You want to sound informed without waffling.

COPY-READY PROMPT

"I am interviewing at [COMPANY] for [ROLE]. Using what I paste below from their website, product pages and recent announcements, build a one-page brief: what they sell, who to, how they likely make money, their apparent priorities, and the three intelligent questions I could ask. Mark anything you are unsure about as unverified rather than guessing. Material: [PASTE]"

CUSTOMIZE

[PASTE] — their own material

Prompt #066

INTERVIEW PREPARATION

Questions To Ask Them

Best for: Candidates at any stage

Use this when: You are asked 'any questions for us?' and blank.

COPY-READY PROMPT

"Give me eight questions to ask at the end of an interview for [ROLE] at a [COMPANY TYPE]: two about the role's real day-to-day, two about how success is measured, two about the team, and two that would reveal problems I would want to know about before accepting. Avoid questions answered on their careers page."

CUSTOMIZE

[ROLE] — the role

Prompt #067

MOCK INTERVIEWS

Full Mock Interview

Best for: Candidates a few days out

Use this when: You want realistic practice with feedback.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Conduct a mock interview for [ROLE] at [COMPANY LEVEL]. Ask one question at a time and wait for my answer. Stay in role — no coaching mid-interview. After 10 questions, break character and give me: a score out of 10 per answer, my two strongest and two weakest moments, filler habits you noticed, and what to fix first. JD: [PASTE]”

CUSTOMIZE

[ROLE] — the role

Prompt #068

MOCK INTERVIEWS

Pressure Round

Best for: Candidates facing tough interviewers

Use this when: You want to practise being challenged.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Interview me for [ROLE] as a sceptical hiring manager who pushes back on every answer with a follow-up question, asks for specifics when I generalise, and questions my numbers. Eight questions, one at a time. Stay professional but hard. Afterwards, tell me which answers collapsed under pressure and how to make them hold.”

CUSTOMIZE

[ROLE] — the role

Prompt #069

MOCK INTERVIEWS

Answer Tightening Pass

Best for: Candidates who ramble

Use this when: Your answers are good but too long.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Here is my answer to the interview question ‘[QUESTION]’: [PASTE]. Cut it to under 90 seconds spoken, keeping every concrete detail and removing background and hedging. Then show me the first sentence rewritten three ways so the answer lands immediately. Do not add new claims.”

CUSTOMIZE

[QUESTION] — the question

[PASTE] — your answer

Prompt #070

CAREER PLANNING

Two-Year Skill Roadmap

Best for: Early-career professionals

Use this when: You want a plan rather than a vague ambition.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“I am a [CURRENT ROLE] with [YEARS] years of experience and I want to reach [TARGET ROLE] in two years. My current skills: [PASTE]. Compare that against what the target role typically requires, identify the real gaps, and build a quarterly roadmap: what to learn, what to build or ship as proof, and what to get on my resume by when. Be honest if two years is unrealistic.”

CUSTOMIZE

[TARGET ROLE] — goal

[PASTE] — your skills

Prompt #071

CAREER PLANNING

Should I Take This Job

Best for: Candidates with an offer

Use this when: You have an offer and mixed feelings.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Help me evaluate a job offer. Role: [ROLE]. Offer details and what I know about the team, work and growth path: [PASTE]. My current situation and priorities: [PASTE]. Build a comparison against staying put, list the questions I should get answered before deciding, name the risks I may be underweighting, and end with what the decision actually hinges on. Do not tell me what to do.”

Prompt #072

CAREER PLANNING

Role Reality Check

Best for: People considering a switch

Use this when: You are drawn to a job title you have never done.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Describe what a [TARGET ROLE] actually does in a typical week at a [COMPANY TYPE]: the tasks, the meetings, the tools, the parts people find draining, and the skills that matter more than the job ads suggest. Then list five questions I could ask someone in the role to test whether I would enjoy it. Be honest about the unglamorous parts.”

CUSTOMIZE

[TARGET ROLE] — the job

Prompt #073

PORTFOLIO

Project Case Study

Best for: Designers, developers, marketers

Use this when: Your portfolio shows outputs with no story.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Turn this project into a portfolio case study: [PASTE]. Structure: the problem and who had it, constraints, what I did and why, the decisions I would defend, the outcome with real numbers where I gave them, and what I learned. Under 500 words, first person, no invented metrics. Mark where a screenshot or artefact should sit.”

CUSTOMIZE

[PASTE] — project details

Prompt #074

PORTFOLIO

Portfolio Gap Plan

Best for: Junior candidates

Use this when: Your portfolio does not match the jobs you want.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Here is my portfolio content and the type of role I want: [PASTE]. Tell me what a hiring manager for that role looks for, what my portfolio currently proves, and what it fails to prove. Then propose two projects I could realistically complete in [WEEKS] weeks that would close the biggest gaps, with a scope small enough to finish.”

CUSTOMIZE

[WEEKS] — time available

Prompt #075

NETWORKING

Informational Chat Request

Best for: Students and switchers

Use this when: You want advice, not a job, from a stranger.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Write a message to someone working as [ROLE] at [COMPANY] asking for a 15-minute conversation about their work. Under 90 words. Be specific about why them, what I want to understand, and make it clearly not a job request. Then give me six questions for the call that they can answer from experience rather than opinion.”

CUSTOMIZE

[ROLE] — their job

Prompt #076

NETWORKING

Keep-In-Touch Follow-Up

Best for: Anyone building a network

Use this when: You met someone useful and never spoke again.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“I spoke with [NAME] about [TOPIC] [TIME] ago. Write a short follow-up that adds value rather than asking for something: reference what we discussed, share one relevant thing I have done or found since, and leave the door open. Under 80 words. Then tell me a reasonable cadence for staying in touch without being annoying.”

CUSTOMIZE

[TOPIC] — what you discussed

Prompt #077

NETWORKING

Event Conversation Prep

Best for: Introverts at conferences

Use this when: You freeze in professional small talk.

COPY-READY PROMPT

"I am attending [EVENT] as a [ROLE]. Give me: a 20-second introduction of myself based on the facts below, three openers that are not about the weather, three questions that reliably get people talking about their work, and two graceful ways to exit a conversation. My background: [PASTE]"

CUSTOMIZE

[EVENT] — the event

Prompt #078

SALARY NEGOTIATION

Salary Conversation Script

Best for: Candidates with an offer in hand

Use this when: You want to negotiate without risking the offer.

COPY-READY PROMPT

"I have an offer for [ROLE] at [COMPANY] of [OFFER]. My research on the range is [RANGE], and my leverage is: [PASTE]. Write a negotiation message and a spoken version: appreciative, specific about the number I am asking for, justified by scope and evidence rather than personal need, and ending with willingness to proceed either way. Then list three likely responses and how to handle each."

CUSTOMIZE

[OFFER] — their number

[RANGE] — market range

PRO TIP

Do not name a number you have not checked. Ask the range question before the offer stage where you can.

Prompt #079

SALARY NEGOTIATION

Expected Salary Answer

Best for: Candidates early in a process

Use this when: You are asked your expectation before you know the role.

COPY-READY PROMPT

"A recruiter for [ROLE] in [LOCATION] asked my salary expectation in the first call. Give me three answers: one that defers politely while keeping goodwill, one that gives a researched range with a reason, and one for when they insist on a number. Keep each under 60 words and tell me when each is the right choice."

CUSTOMIZE

[ROLE] — role

[LOCATION] — market

Prompt #080

SALARY NEGOTIATION

Raise Case Document

Best for: Employees asking internally

Use this when: You want a raise and need evidence, not feelings.

COPY-READY PROMPT

"Help me build the case for a raise. My role, tenure and current pay: [PASTE]. What I have delivered in the last year, with numbers where I have them: [PASTE]. Produce a one-page document: scope then versus now, delivered outcomes, what I am asking for, and why it is reasonable. Add a list of the evidence I should gather before the conversation. Do not inflate anything."

Prompt #081

RESUME WRITING

Duty vs. Result Bullet

Best for: Anyone editing a resume

Use this when: You want to see what a strong bullet looks like.

WEAK REQUEST

“Responsible for handling social media accounts of the company.”

BETTER PROMPT

“Rewrite this resume line so it leads with what changed, not what I was responsible for: ‘Responsible for handling social media accounts.’ Here is what actually happened: I ran two accounts for 9 months, posted 3 times a week, grew followers from 1,200 to 4,000 and started the weekly format that now gets the most saves. Give me two versions, one metric-led and one scope-led, each under 25 words, using only these facts.”

Prompt #082

INTERVIEW PREPARATION

Resume To Offer Workflow

Best for: Serious applicants for one target role

Use this when: You want one thorough pass on a job you really want.

STEP 01Gap analysis

"Compare my resume against this job description. List requirements I meet with evidence, meet partially, and do not meet at all."

STEP 02Tailor the application

"Rewrite my resume summary and top five bullets for this role using only my real experience, and draft a 200-word cover letter addressing my weakest gap honestly."

STEP 03Prepare the interview

"Give me the 12 likeliest questions for this specific role, and for each the evidence from my resume I should use."

STEP 04Rehearse and tighten

"Mock interview me on those questions one at a time, then score my answers and tell me what to fix."

STEP 05Close

"Draft my thank-you note and, if an offer comes, my negotiation message with the range I researched."

PRO TIP

Run this once per role you genuinely want. It beats twenty generic applications.

Prompt #083

JOB SEARCH

Rejection Debrief

Best for: Candidates after a no

Use this when: You were rejected and want to learn something from it.

COPY-READY PROMPT

"I was rejected after [STAGE] for [ROLE]. Here is what happened, including questions I struggled with and any feedback I received: [PASTE]. Identify the two most likely causes, separate what was in my control from what was not, and give me three concrete changes for the next application. Do not reassure me — be analytical."

CUSTOMIZE

[STAGE] — where it ended

Prompt #084

CAREER PLANNING

Internal Move Pitch

Best for: Employees who want a different team

Use this when: You want to move inside your company.

COPY-READY PROMPT

"I work as [CURRENT ROLE] at my company and want to move to [TARGET TEAM / ROLE]. Here is my track record and what I know about that team's needs: [PASTE]. Write a one-page proposal to my manager: why the move helps the company, what I bring, how I would transition without leaving my current work broken, and a proposed timeline. Keep it non-threatening and factual."

Work & Productivity

Less busywork. Clearer output.

Meetings, inboxes, status updates, documentation and the small decisions that eat a working day — turned into prompts you can run in under a minute.

IN THIS PART YOU'LL FIND PROMPTS FOR

- ✓ Email & Inbox
- ✓ Status Updates
- ✓ Decisions
- ✓ Process & SOPs
- ✓ Feedback
- ✓ Meetings & Notes
- ✓ Documents & Reports
- ✓ Prioritisation
- ✓ Data & Spreadsheets
- ✓ Time Management

Best for: Working professionals, team leads, operations · Prompts #085 – #124

Prompt #085

EMAIL & INBOX

Follow-Up Without Sounding Desperate

Best for: Anyone waiting on a reply

Use this when: Someone has not responded and you need to nudge them.

COPY-READY PROMPT

"I sent [WHAT] to [PERSON / ROLE] on [DATE] and have had no reply. Write a follow-up under 100 words that is professional without sounding anxious. Give me three versions — polite, confident and direct — and tell me which fits a relationship that is [NEW / ESTABLISHED]. Include a subject line for each."

CUSTOMIZE

[WHAT] — what you sent

[DATE] — when

PRO TIP

Keep the confident version for the second follow-up and the direct one for the third.

Prompt #086

EMAIL & INBOX

Inbox Triage Rules

Best for: Professionals drowning in email

Use this when: Your inbox has 300 unread and no system.

COPY-READY PROMPT

"Here is a description of the types of email I receive in a typical week and roughly how many of each: [PASTE]. Design a triage system: which categories get a same-day reply, which get batched, which get a template, and which can be ignored or unsubscribed. Give me the folder or label structure and a 10-minute daily routine to keep it working."

Prompt #087

EMAIL & INBOX

Reply Templates For Repeats

Best for: Anyone answering the same questions

Use this when: You keep typing the same reply.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Here are five emails I answer repeatedly: [PASTE]. Turn each into a reusable template with [PLACEHOLDERS] for the parts that change, in my tone as shown by my own replies. Keep each under 120 words and add a one-line note on when to use it and what to always personalise.”

Prompt #088

EMAIL & INBOX

Escalation Email

Best for: Professionals blocked by someone else

Use this when: You need to escalate without burning a relationship.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“I need to escalate [ISSUE] to [SENIOR PERSON] because [BLOCKER] has not moved after [ATTEMPTS]. Write an email that states facts and impact rather than blame, makes the specific ask, and keeps the door open with the person I am escalating past. Under 150 words. Also draft the one-line message I should send that person so they are not blindsided.”

CUSTOMIZE

[ISSUE] — the problem

Prompt #089

EMAIL & INBOX

Saying No Professionally

Best for: Anyone over-committed

Use this when: You have to decline and want to keep the relationship.

COPY-READY PROMPT

"I need to decline [REQUEST] from [PERSON] because [REAL REASON]. Write three versions: a firm no, a no with an alternative I can offer, and a not-now with a specific future date. Under 80 words each. No over-apologising and no vague excuses that invite negotiation."

CUSTOMIZE

[REQUEST] — what was asked

Prompt #090

MEETINGS & NOTES

Meeting Notes To Actions

Best for: Anyone who runs or attends meetings

Use this when: You have messy notes and need decisions and owners.

COPY-READY PROMPT

"Turn these meeting notes into a structured summary: decisions made, open questions, action items with owner and due date where stated, and risks raised. If an owner or date was not stated, mark it as unassigned rather than guessing. Keep the summary under 250 words and list anything discussed that produced no outcome. Notes: [PASTE]"

CUSTOMIZE

[PASTE] — raw notes

PRO TIP

Send the unassigned list back to the room. It is usually where projects quietly stall.

Prompt #091

MEETINGS & NOTES

Agenda That Ends On Time

Best for: Meeting organisers

Use this when: Your meetings overrun and decide nothing.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Build an agenda for a [MINUTES]-minute meeting with [NUMBER] people about [TOPIC]. For each item: the purpose (decide, inform or discuss), the owner, the time budget, and what attendees must read beforehand. Put decisions first. Mark any item that does not need this meeting and could be an email instead.”

CUSTOMIZE

[MINUTES] — length

[TOPIC] — subject

Prompt #092

MEETINGS & NOTES

Pre-Read One-Pager

Best for: Anyone proposing something in a meeting

Use this when: You want the decision made, not explained.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Turn my material into a one-page pre-read for a decision meeting: the decision required, background in five lines, the options with trade-offs, the recommendation and its risks, and what I need from the room. Under 400 words, no jargon, table for the options. Material: [PASTE]”

Prompt #093

MEETINGS & NOTES

Meeting Recap Email

Best for: Attendees who want clarity on record

Use this when: The meeting ended with a different understanding for everyone.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Write a recap email from these notes: what we agreed, what each person owns, what is still open, and the next checkpoint date. Neutral tone, under 200 words, bullet form, and a closing line inviting corrections within 24 hours. Do not add decisions that were not made. Notes: [PASTE]”

Prompt #094

STATUS UPDATES

Weekly Status Update

Best for: Anyone reporting to a manager

Use this when: You need a clear update in five minutes.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Turn this week’s raw work log into a status update for my manager: shipped, in progress with expected date, blocked with what I need and from whom, and next week’s focus. Under 200 words, no filler, flag risk early rather than at the deadline. Log: [PASTE]”

CUSTOMIZE

[PASTE] — your week

Prompt #095

STATUS UPDATES

Bad News Update

Best for: Project owners with a slipping deadline

Use this when: You will miss a date and need to say so.

COPY-READY PROMPT

"I will miss the [DEADLINE] for [PROJECT] by roughly [DELAY] because of [CAUSE]. Write the message to [STAKEHOLDER]: lead with the new date, explain the cause factually in two sentences, state what I have already done to limit the impact, and offer the options with their trade-offs. No defensiveness, no over-apology."

CUSTOMIZE

[PROJECT] — the work

[DELAY] — how late

Prompt #096

STATUS UPDATES

Executive Summary Rewrite

Best for: Anyone writing for senior readers

Use this when: Your update is too detailed for the audience.

COPY-READY PROMPT

"Rewrite this update for a senior leader who has 60 seconds and cares about outcome, risk and decisions needed. Lead with the headline, then three bullets maximum, then a one-line ask. Move all detail to an appendix section below. Keep every number accurate. Update: [PASTE]"

Prompt #097

DOCUMENTS & REPORTS

Report Structure First

Best for: Anyone writing a long document
Use this when: You have findings but no shape.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“I need to write a [DOCUMENT TYPE] for [AUDIENCE] about [SUBJECT], roughly [LENGTH]. Here is my material: [PASTE]. Propose a structure with section headings, the purpose of each section in one line, and what evidence goes where. Flag any claim in my material that is not yet supported by evidence I have provided.”

CUSTOMIZE

[AUDIENCE] — who reads it [LENGTH] — target length

Prompt #098

DOCUMENTS & REPORTS

Turn Data Into Narrative

Best for: Analysts and report writers
Use this when: You have results and need to say what they mean.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Here are my results: [PASTE]. Write the findings section: what the data shows, what it does not show, the two most important patterns and their likely explanations clearly labelled as interpretation, and the limitations. Do not overstate causation, and do not add any number that is not in my data.”

Prompt #099

DOCUMENTS & REPORTS

Policy Into Plain Language

Best for: HR, ops and internal comms

Use this when: A policy document is accurate and unreadable.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Rewrite this policy for employees at a [COMPANY TYPE] so it is understandable on one read. Keep every rule and obligation exactly as written, remove legal padding, use ‘you’ and short sentences, and add a three-line summary at the top plus a short FAQ of the questions people will actually ask. Policy: [PASTE]”

Prompt #100

DOCUMENTS & REPORTS

Handover Document

Best for: Anyone leaving a role or project

Use this when: You are handing your work to someone else.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Build a handover document for [ROLE / PROJECT] from my description of what I do: [PASTE]. Include: recurring responsibilities with timing, systems and access needed, key contacts and what each is for, work in flight with current state, known problems and their workarounds, and the first-week checklist for my successor. Flag anything I have mentioned vaguely that needs more detail from me.”

Prompt #101

DECISIONS

Decision Brief

Best for: Anyone facing a close call

Use this when: Two options both look reasonable.

COPY-READY PROMPT

"I need to decide between [OPTION A] and [OPTION B] for [CONTEXT]. Here is what I know: [PASTE]. Build a decision brief: criteria that actually matter, how each option scores, what each choice assumes, what would have to be true for each to be right, the reversible versus irreversible parts, and the information that would most change the answer. Do not pick for me."

CUSTOMIZE

[OPTION A] — first choice

[OPTION B] — second choice

PRO TIP

The 'what would have to be true' section is usually the one that ends the debate.

Prompt #102

DECISIONS

Pre-Mortem

Best for: Teams about to commit

Use this when: You want to find the failure before it happens.

COPY-READY PROMPT

"It is [TIME PERIOD] from now and [PLAN] has failed badly. Here is the plan: [PASTE]. Write the post-mortem of that failure: the most likely causes in order of probability, the early warning signals we would have seen, and what we could put in place now to catch each one. Be specific to this plan, not generic risk management."

CUSTOMIZE

[PLAN] — your plan

Prompt #103

DECISIONS

Steelman The Other Side

Best for: Anyone arguing a position

Use this when: You are confident and want to test it.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Here is my position and reasoning on [DECISION]: [PASTE]. Build the strongest possible case against it — not strawmen, the argument a smart colleague who disagrees would make. Then tell me which of their points I have no good answer to, and what evidence would settle the disagreement.”

Prompt #104

PRIORITISATION

Overloaded Week Triage

Best for: Anyone with too much to do

Use this when: Everything feels urgent and nothing is moving.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Here is everything on my plate this week with deadlines and who asked: [PASTE]. Sort into: do now, schedule, delegate with a suggested message, and drop or renegotiate with a suggested message. Tell me which two items actually matter for my goals and which are just loud. Assume I have [HOURS] usable hours.”

CUSTOMIZE

[HOURS] — real capacity

Prompt #105

PRIORITISATION

Project Task Breakdown

Best for: Anyone with a vague big task

Use this when: A project is too big to start.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Break [PROJECT] into tasks that each take under two hours. Show them in dependency order, mark which can run in parallel, estimate the total, and identify the first task I can start in the next 15 minutes. Then tell me which task is most likely to expand beyond its estimate and why.

Context: [PASTE]”

CUSTOMIZE

[PROJECT] — the work

Prompt #106

PRIORITISATION

Renegotiate A Deadline

Best for: Anyone given an impossible date

Use this when: You were handed a timeline that does not fit.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“I was asked to deliver [WORK] by [DATE]. Realistically it needs [ESTIMATE], and here is why: [PASTE]. Write a message to [PERSON] that does not refuse, but presents three options: full scope later, reduced scope on time, or full scope on time with specific additional help. Make the trade-offs explicit and let them choose.”

CUSTOMIZE

[WORK] — the task

[DATE] — their date

Prompt #107

PROCESS & SOPS

SOP From A Messy Description

Best for: Operations and small teams

Use this when: A process lives in someone's head.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Turn my description of how we do [PROCESS] into a standard operating procedure: purpose, when it is triggered, roles, numbered steps with the tool used at each, decision points with criteria, common failure cases and what to do, and a final quality check. Mark the steps where my description was ambiguous instead of filling the gap. Description: [PASTE]”

CUSTOMIZE

[PROCESS] — the workflow

Prompt #108

PROCESS & SOPS

Find The Automatable Steps

Best for: Anyone with repetitive work

Use this when: You suspect half your week could be automated.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Here is my weekly recurring work with rough time spent: [PASTE]. For each, classify as: automatable with simple tools, partly automatable with a template or checklist, or genuinely manual. For the automatable ones, describe the approach in plain terms and the setup effort. Rank by time saved per hour of setup.”

Prompt #109

PROCESS & SOPS

Onboarding Checklist

Best for: Managers and team leads

Use this when: A new person joins next week.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Build a 30-day onboarding plan for a [ROLE] joining my team of [SIZE] working on [WORK]. Week by week: access and setup, what to read, who to meet and why, first small task, first real task, and the checkpoints where I confirm they are on track. Include the questions I should ask at day 7 and day 30.”

CUSTOMIZE

[ROLE] — the hire

Prompt #110

DATA & SPREADSHEETS

Spreadsheet Formula Builder

Best for: Anyone working in Sheets or Excel

Use this when: You know what you want but not the formula.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“In [GOOGLE SHEETS / EXCEL], my data is laid out like this: [DESCRIBE COLUMNS AND A FEW ROWS]. I want to [GOAL]. Give me the formula, explain each part in one line, tell me what it returns when data is missing or malformed, and give a simpler alternative if one exists. Then show what to change if my columns move.”

CUSTOMIZE

[GOAL] — what you want

Prompt #111

DATA & SPREADSHEETS

Clean This Messy Data

Best for: Anyone with human-entered data

Use this when: Your sheet is full of inconsistent entries.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Here is a sample of my data: [PASTE]. Identify the data quality problems — inconsistent formats, duplicates, mixed units, stray text in number columns, missing values. For each, give me the exact steps or formula to fix it in [TOOL], and tell me which fixes are safe to automate and which need human review.”

Prompt #112

DATA & SPREADSHEETS

Explain This Table

Best for: Anyone handed a report

Use this when: You need to understand a table quickly.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Here is a table of [WHAT IT MEASURES]: [PASTE]. Tell me in plain language what it shows, the three most notable numbers and why, what looks anomalous and worth checking, and what questions the table cannot answer. Do not speculate about causes beyond what the data supports.”

Prompt #113

FEEDBACK

Constructive Feedback Script

Best for: Managers and peers

Use this when: You must raise a performance issue.

COPY-READY PROMPT

"I need to give feedback to [PERSON / ROLE] about [BEHAVIOUR], which has happened [FREQUENCY] and caused [IMPACT]. Write a script: the opening, the specific observation without character judgement, the impact, the question that invites their view, and the agreed next step. Under 200 words. Then list three ways they might respond and how to handle each."

CUSTOMIZE

[BEHAVIOUR] — what happened

[IMPACT] — the consequence

Prompt #114

FEEDBACK

Receiving Hard Feedback

Best for: Anyone after a tough review

Use this when: You got critical feedback and reacted emotionally.

COPY-READY PROMPT

"Here is feedback I received: [PASTE]. Separate it into: specific and actionable, vague but possibly valid, and likely about the giver rather than me. For the actionable parts, give me one concrete behaviour change each and a way to check progress in 30 days. Then draft a short reply that acknowledges it without grovelling."

Prompt #115

FEEDBACK

Peer Review Comments

Best for: Anyone reviewing colleagues

Use this when: You need to write review input that is useful.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Help me write peer review feedback for [PERSON], a [ROLE] I worked with on [PROJECT]. Here are my observations: [PASTE]. Produce: two strengths with specific evidence, one development area framed as a behaviour rather than a trait, and one suggestion for how I can support it. Fair, specific, no vague praise and no personality comments.”

Prompt #116

TIME MANAGEMENT

Where My Week Went

Best for: Anyone feeling busy but unproductive

Use this when: You worked all week and cannot say on what.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Here is a log of how I spent my working hours this week: [PASTE]. Group it into categories, estimate the percentage in each, and tell me: how much went to work only I could do, how much was reactive, and where the fragmentation is worst. Then suggest three specific changes to next week’s calendar, not general advice.”

Prompt #117

Calendar Redesign

Best for: Professionals in meeting-heavy roles

Use this when: You have no uninterrupted time left.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Here is my typical week's calendar: [PASTE]. Redesign it to create at least [HOURS] hours of uninterrupted focus time, by batching meetings, proposing which recurring meetings to shorten, merge or drop, and protecting blocks. For each change, give me the one-line message I would send to make it happen.”

CUSTOMIZE

[HOURS] — focus time needed

Prompt #118

TIME MANAGEMENT

Two-Minute Task Sweep

Best for: Anyone with a cluttered list

Use this when: Small tasks are piling up and creating noise.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Here is my task list: [PASTE]. Pull out everything that would take under five minutes and order them so I can clear them in one 30-minute sweep, grouping by tool or context so I am not switching constantly. Then tell me which of the remaining items are actually projects disguised as tasks and need breaking down.”

Prompt #119

EMAIL & INBOX

Vague vs. Specific Email Request

Best for: Anyone drafting a message

Use this when: You want to see the difference context makes.

WEAK REQUEST

"Write an email to my team about the project delay."

BETTER PROMPT

"Write an email to my team of six engineers telling them our launch is moving from 14 March to 28 March because the payment integration failed security review. Under 150 words. Be direct in the first line, explain what changed and what it means for their current tasks, state that no weekend work is expected, and end with the one thing I need from each of them by Friday. Calm, no blame."

Prompt #120

MEETINGS & NOTES

Meeting To Delivered Outcome

Best for: Anyone owning follow-through

Use this when: You want a meeting to actually produce results.

STEP 01Prepare

"Build the agenda for a [MINUTES]-minute meeting about [TOPIC], marking each item as decide, discuss or inform, and write the pre-read."

STEP 02Capture

"Turn my raw notes into decisions, owners, dates and open questions. Mark anything unassigned."

STEP 03Communicate

"Write the recap email under 200 words and a one-line message per owner with just their item."

STEP 04Chase

"Two days before each due date, draft a short, non-nagging check-in for each owner."

STEP 05Close

"Summarise what was delivered against what was agreed, and list what slipped and why."

Prompt #121

DOCUMENTS & REPORTS

Proofread Without Rewriting

Best for: Anyone sending something important

Use this when: You want errors caught, not your voice changed.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Proofread the text below for spelling, grammar, punctuation, inconsistent terms, number and date errors, and broken references. Do not improve my style or restructure anything. Output a table: original phrase, correction, reason. Then list anything factually inconsistent within the document. Text: [PASTE]”

Prompt #122

DECISIONS

Tool Or Vendor Comparison

Best for: Teams choosing software

Use this when: You are comparing options and the marketing pages all sound the same.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“I am choosing between [OPTIONS] for [USE CASE] with a team of [SIZE] and a budget of [BUDGET]. Build a comparison on the criteria that matter for my use case, not their feature lists: fit for our workflow, switching cost, what breaks at our scale, and lock-in. Mark anything you are not certain about and list the questions I should ask each vendor.”

CUSTOMIZE

[OPTIONS] — the shortlist

[USE CASE] — what you need

Prompt #123

PRIORITISATION

Monday Planning Session

Best for: Anyone starting the week

Use this when: You want a 15-minute plan that survives contact with reality.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Ask me four questions about my week: my hard commitments, my one outcome that matters most, what is at risk, and my realistic capacity. Then produce a plan that schedules the important outcome first, leaves [PERCENT] of my time unplanned for reactive work, and names what I am consciously not doing this week.”

CUSTOMIZE

[PERCENT] — slack to leave

PRO TIP

If you plan more than 60% of your week, the plan is fiction by Wednesday.

Prompt #124

PROCESS & SOPS

Checklist For A Recurring Task

Best for: Anyone who keeps missing a step

Use this when: A routine task goes wrong in the same way repeatedly.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Turn [TASK] into a pre-flight checklist with fewer than 12 items, each verifiable in under a minute and written as a check rather than an instruction. Include the three items where mistakes are most expensive, marked. Base it on this description of the task and past mistakes: [PASTE]”

CUSTOMIZE

[TASK] — the routine

Writing & Communication

Say it clearly. Say it once.

Prompts for drafting, tightening, restructuring and adapting writing — from a difficult message to a long document that needs a clear spine.

IN THIS PART YOU'LL FIND PROMPTS FOR

- ✓ Drafting
- ✓ Tone & Rewriting
- ✓ Structure & Outlines
- ✓ Storytelling
- ✓ Proofreading
- ✓ Editing & Tightening
- ✓ Difficult Messages
- ✓ Summarising
- ✓ Public Speaking
- ✓ Translation & Plain Language

Best for: Anyone who writes at work or in public · Prompts #125 – #163

Prompt #125

DRAFTING

First Draft From Messy Thinking

Best for: Anyone staring at a blank page

Use this when: You know roughly what you want to say and cannot start.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Below are my unstructured thoughts about [TOPIC], written badly and out of order. Turn them into a structured first draft of a [DOCUMENT TYPE] for [AUDIENCE], around [WORD COUNT] words. Keep my points and my opinions — do not add new claims or soften my position. Where my thinking has a gap, insert a bracketed note rather than inventing filler. Thoughts: [PASTE]”

CUSTOMIZE

[AUDIENCE] — who reads it

[WORD COUNT] — length

PRO TIP

Dictate your thoughts as voice notes and paste the transcript. It is faster and sounds more like you.

Prompt #126

DRAFTING

Three Openings

Best for: Writers of anything read by choice

Use this when: Your first paragraph is not earning the second.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Here is my draft: [PASTE]. Write three alternative openings of no more than three sentences each — one that starts with the specific problem, one that starts with a concrete moment or example, and one that states the counter-intuitive point directly. Then tell me which suits [AUDIENCE] and why. Do not change the rest.”

Prompt #127

DRAFTING

Write In My Voice

Best for: Anyone using AI for their own writing

Use this when: AI drafts do not sound like you.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Here are three samples of my own writing: [PASTE]. Describe my voice in specific terms: sentence length, vocabulary level, how I open and close, what I do and do not do. Then write [NEW PIECE] following that description. Afterwards, list where you had to guess because my samples did not cover that situation.”

CUSTOMIZE

[NEW PIECE] — what to write

Prompt #128

EDITING & TIGHTENING

Cut Thirty Percent

Best for: Anyone over a word limit

Use this when: Your draft is too long and every line feels necessary.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Cut this text by 30% without losing any argument, fact or example. Remove hedging, repetition, throat-clearing and adjectives that carry no information. Return the edited version, then a short list of what you removed and why, so I can restore anything I disagree with. Text: [PASTE]”

PRO TIP

Ask for 30% even if you only need 10%. You will usually accept more cuts than you expected.

Prompt #129

EDITING & TIGHTENING

Line Edit With Reasons

Best for: Writers who want to improve

Use this when: You want to learn from the edit, not just take it.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Line edit the passage below for clarity and rhythm. Output a three-column table: my sentence, your revision, and the specific reason in under ten words. Do not change my meaning, argument, or level of formality. Keep any deliberate repetition I have used for effect. Passage: [PASTE]”

Prompt #130

EDITING & TIGHTENING

Remove The AI Smell

Best for: Anyone editing generated text

Use this when: A draft reads like it was written by a machine.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Rewrite this text to remove the tells of generated writing: tricolon lists everywhere, ‘in today’s fast-paced world’ openers, ‘it’s not just X, it’s Y’ constructions, summary paragraphs that repeat the body, and adjective stacking. Keep the content, use varied sentence lengths, and let some sentences be plain. Text: [PASTE]”

Prompt #131

TONE & REWRITING

Same Message, Three Tones

Best for: Anyone unsure how to pitch a message

Use this when: You do not know how formal to be.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Rewrite this message in three tones — warm and informal, neutral and professional, firm and formal — keeping the facts and the ask identical. Under [WORD LIMIT] words each. Then tell me which fits a [RELATIONSHIP] relationship in [CULTURE / INDUSTRY] and what signal each version sends. Message: [PASTE]”

CUSTOMIZE

[RELATIONSHIP] — e.g. new client

Prompt #132

TONE & REWRITING

Soften Without Losing The Point

Best for: Anyone writing while annoyed

Use this when: Your draft is honest and too sharp to send.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Here is a message I wrote while frustrated: [PASTE]. Rewrite it so it stays direct and keeps every substantive point, but removes the sarcasm, accusation and emotional language. Do not make it vague or apologetic. Then tell me which parts of my original were legitimate points and which were just venting.”

Prompt #133

TONE & REWRITING

Formal To Human

Best for: Anyone writing internal comms

Use this when: Your writing sounds like a corporate press release.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Rewrite this so a real person wrote it: contractions where natural, ‘we’ and ‘you’, short sentences, no corporate abstractions like leverage, synergy, streamline or robust. Keep all facts and commitments exactly. Then show me the five worst phrases from the original and what they actually meant. Text: [PASTE]”

Prompt #134

DIFFICULT MESSAGES

Apology That Does Not Grovel

Best for: Anyone who made a mistake at work

Use this when: You need to apologise and keep credibility.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“I made this mistake: [WHAT HAPPENED], affecting [WHO], with this impact: [IMPACT]. Write an apology message that takes clear responsibility once, states the impact plainly, describes what I have already done and what I will change, and does not repeat the apology three times. Under 150 words. No excuses, no blaming circumstances.”

CUSTOMIZE

[WHAT HAPPENED] — the mistake

Prompt #135

DIFFICULT MESSAGES

Complaint That Gets Resolved

Best for: Customers and clients

Use this when: Something went wrong and you want it fixed, not a fight.

COPY-READY PROMPT

"I need to complain to [COMPANY] about [ISSUE]. Facts, dates and reference numbers: [PASTE]. Write a complaint that states the timeline factually, the impact, what I have already tried, exactly what resolution I want, and a reasonable deadline. Firm and unemotional. Then draft the escalation version to use if there is no reply."

CUSTOMIZE

[ISSUE] — the problem

Prompt #136

DIFFICULT MESSAGES

Disagreeing With Someone Senior

Best for: Employees with an unpopular view

Use this when: You think a decision is wrong and want to say so safely.

COPY-READY PROMPT

"I disagree with [DECISION] made by [SENIOR PERSON]. My reasoning and evidence: [PASTE]. Write a message that separates fact from opinion, acknowledges what I might be missing, presents the risk in terms of their goals, and offers a specific alternative. Under 200 words. Respectful without being timid, and ending in a way that lets them change course without losing face."

Prompt #137

DIFFICULT MESSAGES

Chasing Unpaid Work

Best for: Freelancers and small businesses

Use this when: An invoice is overdue and you still want the client.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Invoice [NUMBER] for [AMOUNT] was due on [DATE] and is now [DAYS] days late. Previous contact: [PASTE]. Write a three-step sequence: a friendly reminder, a firmer follow-up a week later, and a formal notice that states my next step. Keep each under 120 words, professional throughout, no threats in the first two.”

CUSTOMIZE

[AMOUNT] — invoice value

[DAYS] — how late

Prompt #138

STRUCTURE & OUTLINES

Argument Map Before Writing

Best for: Anyone making a case in writing

Use this when: You want your argument to hold before you polish sentences.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“My claim is: [CLAIM]. My supporting points and evidence: [PASTE]. Map the argument: which points genuinely support the claim, which are assumptions presented as evidence, which are irrelevant, and what the strongest counter-argument is. Then propose the order that makes the case most convincing and tell me what evidence I still need.”

CUSTOMIZE

[CLAIM] — your argument

Prompt #139

STRUCTURE & OUTLINES

Outline For Long Writing

Best for: Writers of reports, articles and chapters

Use this when: You have a big topic and no spine.

COPY-READY PROMPT

"I am writing [LENGTH] on [TOPIC] for [AUDIENCE], and my goal is that they [DESIRED OUTCOME]. Build an outline: sections, the one job each section does, the key point it must land, and a word budget. Mark the two sections that will be hardest to write and why. Do not write the content yet."

CUSTOMIZE

[DESIRED OUTCOME] — what readers should do

Prompt #140

STRUCTURE & OUTLINES

Reorder For Impact

Best for: Anyone with a finished draft

Use this when: The content is right but the order is wrong.

COPY-READY PROMPT

"Here is my draft: [PASTE]. Without rewriting the prose, propose a better order for the sections or paragraphs and explain what each move achieves for the reader. Identify anything that appears too late to be useful and anything that should be cut because a reordering makes it redundant."

Prompt #141

SUMMARISING

Layered Summary

Best for: Anyone with long documents to digest

Use this when: You need both the gist and the detail.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Summarise the document below at three depths: one sentence, one paragraph of 80 words, and a structured brief of 400 words with headings. Keep all figures, dates and named commitments exactly as written. At the end, list anything the document implies but does not state. Document: [PASTE]”

PRO TIP

Read the one-sentence version first. If it is not what you expected, the document is not what you thought.

Prompt #142

SUMMARISING

Summary For A Specific Reader

Best for: Anyone briefing someone else

Use this when: Different readers need different summaries of the same thing.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Summarise this for [PERSON / ROLE] who cares about [THEIR CONCERN] and has [TIME] to read it. Include only what affects their decisions, translate any jargon from my field into theirs, and end with the specific thing I need from them. Source: [PASTE]”

CUSTOMIZE

[THEIR CONCERN] — what they care about

Prompt #143

SUMMARISING

Transcript To Brief

Best for: Anyone with call recordings

Use this when: You have an hour-long transcript and need the substance.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Here is a transcript of a [CALL TYPE]: [PASTE]. Produce: the purpose of the call, key points per participant, decisions, commitments with owners, disagreements left unresolved, and quotable lines worth keeping verbatim. Exclude small talk. Do not attribute anything to a speaker who did not say it.”

Prompt #144

STORYTELLING

Find The Story In The Facts

Best for: Anyone presenting work

Use this when: Your material is accurate and flat.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Here are the facts of what happened: [PASTE]. Find the narrative: what was at stake, the turning point, the tension, and the resolution. Write it as a 300-word story for [AUDIENCE] without adding invented drama, dialogue or details. Then tell me which facts are doing the emotional work and which I could cut.”

Prompt #145

STORYTELLING

Analogy Generator

Best for: Anyone explaining complex work

Use this when: Your audience does not have your background.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“I need to explain [CONCEPT] to [AUDIENCE] who know nothing about [FIELD]. Give me five analogies from different domains — everyday life, sport, cooking, travel, money — and for each, state precisely where the analogy breaks down. Then recommend the one that misleads least for this audience.”

CUSTOMIZE

[CONCEPT] — the idea

[AUDIENCE] — who listens

Prompt #146

Talk Structure And Script

Best for: Anyone giving a presentation

Use this when: You have [MINUTES] to speak and notes everywhere.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Build a [MINUTES]-minute talk for [AUDIENCE] on [TOPIC] with the goal that they [OUTCOME]. Give me: the one sentence they should remember, a three-part structure with timing, what goes on each slide versus what I say, and the opening and closing lines written out in full. Speaking notes should be spoken language, not written prose. Material: [PASTE]”

CUSTOMIZE

[MINUTES] — talk length

[OUTCOME] — what should change

Prompt #147

Q&A Preparation

Best for: Presenters facing an informed audience

Use this when: You fear the questions more than the talk.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Here is my talk content: [PASTE]. Predict the 12 questions I am most likely to get from [AUDIENCE], including the two hostile ones and the one I cannot answer. For each, give the honest answer structure in three lines. Tell me which questions I should pre-empt inside the talk instead of leaving to Q&A.”

Prompt #148

Nervous Speaker Rehearsal

Best for: People who dread presenting

Use this when: You need to sound composed, not fearless.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“I am presenting [TOPIC] to [AUDIENCE] for [MINUTES] minutes and I get nervous in the first two minutes. Give me: an opening I can deliver on autopilot, three physical and verbal habits to control pace, what to do if I lose my place, and a rehearsal plan for the [DAYS] days I have. Practical only — no confidence affirmations.”

CUSTOMIZE

[DAYS] — time to prepare

Prompt #149

PROOFREADING

Consistency Check

Best for: Anyone finishing a long document

Use this when: Terms, formats and names drift over 20 pages.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Check this document for internal consistency only: terminology used differently in different places, name and title spellings, date and number formats, heading style, capitalisation, and contradictions between sections. Output a table of issue, where it appears, and the suggested single standard. Do not edit for style. Document: [PASTE]”

Prompt #150

PROOFREADING

Read It As A Stranger

Best for: Anyone too close to their own draft

Use this when: You cannot tell if it is clear any more.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Read this as someone from [AUDIENCE] encountering the subject for the first time. Tell me: the first point where you were confused, any term used before it was explained, anything you would have to re-read, and the questions left unanswered at the end. Do not fix anything — just report what a first-time reader experiences. Text: [PASTE]”

Prompt #151

TRANSLATION & PLAIN LANGUAGE

Translate And Localise

Best for: Anyone writing for another language

Use this when: A direct translation would read badly.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Translate the text below into [LANGUAGE] for [AUDIENCE] in [REGION]. Keep meaning and tone rather than word order, adapt idioms, units, currency and examples to local norms, and keep any legal or technical terms precise. Then list the three places where you deliberately departed from the literal translation and why. Text: [PASTE]”

CUSTOMIZE

[LANGUAGE] — target

[REGION] — market

Prompt #152

TRANSLATION & PLAIN LANGUAGE

Plain Language Rewrite

Best for: Anyone writing for a wide public

Use this when: Your writing is accurate and hard to read.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Rewrite this at a reading level suitable for a general adult audience: short sentences, common words, one idea per sentence, active voice, no nested clauses. Keep every fact, obligation and number exact. Then list any technical term you kept and the one-line definition you added. Text: [PASTE]”

Prompt #153

DRAFTING

Bio In Three Lengths

Best for: Anyone with a public profile

Use this when: You need a bio for a talk, a site and a byline.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Write my bio in three lengths — 25 words, 60 words and 120 words — from the facts below, in third person, with a first-person variant of the shortest. No adjectives about how good I am; let the facts carry it. Do not add credentials, employers or achievements I have not listed. Facts: [PASTE]”

Prompt #154

EDITING & TIGHTENING

Headline And Subject Line Set

Best for: Anyone whose writing must get opened

Use this when: The content is good and nobody clicks.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Write ten options for the [HEADLINE / SUBJECT LINE] of this piece: [PASTE]. Vary the approach — specific outcome, question, number, contrast, plain description — and label each approach. Under 12 words each, no clickbait or fake urgency, nothing the content does not deliver. Then rank the top three for [AUDIENCE] with reasons.”

Prompt #155

STRUCTURE & OUTLINES

Turn A Doc Into Slides

Best for: Anyone presenting written work

Use this when: You have a document and need to present it.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Convert this document into a [NUMBER]-slide deck: one message per slide as the headline, three supporting points maximum, and a note on what I say that is not written. Tell me which parts of the document do not belong in a deck at all and should stay as a handout. Document: [PASTE]”

CUSTOMIZE

[NUMBER] — slide count

Prompt #156

DIFFICULT MESSAGES

Weak vs. Strong Difficult Message

Best for: Anyone writing something hard to say

Use this when: You want to see how much detail changes the output.

“Write an email declining a client request.”

BETTER PROMPT

“Write an email to a long-term client who has asked me to add a second landing page to a project that is already in final review, at no extra cost. I want to keep the relationship and the project on schedule. Under 130 words: acknowledge the request, explain the impact on the current deadline in one line, offer two options — add it as a small separate piece of work with a quote, or schedule it after launch — and let them choose. Warm, not apologetic.”

Prompt #157

DRAFTING

Idea To Published Piece

Best for: Writers with a recurring output

Use this when: You want a repeatable process from idea to publish.

STEP 01

Sharpen the idea

"Here is my rough idea: [PASTE]. Tell me what the actual claim is, who it is for, and why it is worth their time. Give me three sharper versions of the angle."

STEP 02

Outline

"Build an outline for the chosen angle, with the job of each section and a word budget."

STEP 03

Draft

"Write the draft from the outline in my voice, using the samples I gave you. Mark any place where you needed a fact I did not provide."

STEP 04

Edit hard

"Cut 25%, strengthen the opening, and flag any claim I should verify before publishing."

STEP 05

Package

"Give me the title options, a 60-word summary, and three short social posts that do not spoil the piece."

Prompt #158

SUMMARISING

Compare Two Documents

Best for: Anyone tracking changes in agreements or drafts

Use this when: Two versions of a document exist and you need the diff in meaning.

COPY-READY PROMPT

"Compare document A and document B below. Output: what changed substantively, what changed only in wording, what was removed, what was added, and which changes could affect obligations, cost or timing. Ignore formatting. Flag anything ambiguous rather than interpreting it.
A: [PASTE] B: [PASTE]"

Prompt #159

TONE & REWRITING

Write For Someone Who Skims

Best for: Anyone writing for busy readers

Use this when: Your reader will scan, not read.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Restructure this so a skimming reader still gets the message: a headline that carries the point, bold lead-ins on each section, the ask in the first 40 words, and bullets where the prose was carrying a list. Keep the full version below the fold for those who read on. Text: [PASTE]”

Prompt #160

PROOFREADING

Fact And Claim Audit

Best for: Anyone publishing under their name

Use this when: You want to catch unsupported claims before a reader does.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Go through this text and list every factual claim, statistic, date and attributed quote. For each, mark whether the source is stated in my text, implied, or absent. Flag any claim that sounds authoritative but has no basis in what I provided, and any generalisation that needs qualifying. Do not research — just audit what is here. Text: [PASTE]”

PRO TIP

Do this before publishing anything with numbers in it. Unsourced statistics are the fastest way to lose trust.

Prompt #161

STORYTELLING

Case Study From A Win

Best for: Businesses and professionals

Use this when: You did good work and cannot describe it well.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Turn this into a customer case study: [PASTE]. Structure: the client's situation and constraint, what they tried before, what we did and the reasoning, the result with only the numbers I provided, and a closing line about who this applies to. 400 words, no superlatives, no invented quotes. Mark where I should request a client quote.”

Prompt #162

PUBLIC SPEAKING

Elevator Explanation

Best for: Anyone who is asked what they do

Use this when: Your answer is either too vague or too long.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Help me explain what I do in 20 seconds. Here is the honest, messy version: [PASTE]. Give me three options: one for a stranger at a social event, one for a potential client, and one for someone in my own field. No jargon in the first two, and no grandiose framing in any of them.”

Prompt #163

EDITING & TIGHTENING

Kill The Hedging

Best for: Anyone who writes too cautiously

Use this when: Your writing is full of ‘might’, ‘perhaps’ and ‘it seems’.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Find every hedge, qualifier and passive construction in this text that weakens a claim I can actually stand behind. Show each one and a direct replacement. Where a hedge is legitimate because the evidence is genuinely uncertain, keep it and say why. Text: [PASTE]”

Prompt #164

IDEAS & ANGLES

Content Ideas From My Actual Work

Best for: Creators who are not influencers

Use this when: You have expertise and no idea what to post.

COPY-READY PROMPT

"I work as [ROLE] and here are the real things I did, learned or fixed in the last month: [PASTE]. Generate 20 content ideas drawn only from that material, for [PLATFORM]. For each: the angle, who it is for, and the specific thing they take away. No generic motivational topics, no listicles about productivity."

CUSTOMIZE

[PLATFORM] — where you post

PRO TIP

Your boring Tuesday is someone else's tutorial. Mine the work, not the trends.

Prompt #165

IDEAS & ANGLES

One Topic, Ten Angles

Best for: Creators with a narrow niche

Use this when: You keep making the same post about your topic.

COPY-READY PROMPT

"Take the topic [TOPIC] and give me ten genuinely different angles: beginner mistake, contrarian take, behind the scenes, comparison, myth correction, step-by-step, case example, cost of getting it wrong, question people are embarrassed to ask, and what changed recently. For each, write the hook line and the one-sentence payoff."

CUSTOMIZE

[TOPIC] — your subject

Prompt #166

IDEAS & ANGLES

Content Pillars

Best for: Creators building consistency

Use this when: Your feed has no recognisable shape.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“I create content about [NICHE] for [AUDIENCE], and my goal is [GOAL]. Propose four content pillars with a clear job each, the ratio between them in a month, three example formats per pillar, and what I should stop posting because it fits none of them. Be specific to my niche, not a generic educate-entertain-inspire split.”

CUSTOMIZE

[NICHE] — your topic

[GOAL] — why you post

Prompt #167

HOOKS

Hook Rewrites

Best for: Short-form creators

Use this when: People scroll past your first three seconds.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Here is my content idea: [PASTE]. Write 12 opening hooks under 12 words each, labelled by type: specific number, mistake, contradiction, question, before-and-after, direct callout of the audience, and stakes. No ‘stop scrolling’, no fake urgency, nothing the content does not deliver. Then mark the two that work best for [PLATFORM].”

Prompt #168

HOOKS

Hook Diagnostic

Best for: Creators with flat retention
Use this when: Views drop in the first few seconds.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Here are five of my hooks and their retention numbers: [PASTE]. Identify what the better-performing hooks have in common and what the weaker ones fail to do, based only on the patterns in my data. Then rewrite the three weakest using what worked, and tell me what to test next.”

Prompt #169

SHORT-FORM VIDEO

Reel Or Short Script

Best for: Creators making 30–60 second video
Use this when: You need a script that fits the format.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Write a [SECONDS]-second script about [TOPIC] for [PLATFORM], for [AUDIENCE]. Format: hook in the first line, three beats of content, one closing line. Mark on-screen text separately from spoken lines, keep spoken words under [NUMBER] total, and note the visual for each beat. Conversational — write how people talk, not how they write.”

CUSTOMIZE

[SECONDS] — length

[TOPIC] — subject

Prompt #170

SHORT-FORM VIDEO

Talking Head Without A Script

Best for: Creators who sound stiff reading

Use this when: Scripts make you wooden but improvising rambles.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Turn my topic into a bullet skeleton for a [SECONDS]-second talking-head video: the exact first sentence written out, five bullets with the key phrase for each beat, and the exact last sentence. Nothing else scripted, so I can talk naturally in between. Topic and my points: [PASTE]”

Prompt #171

SHORT-FORM VIDEO

Tutorial In Sixty Seconds

Best for: Creators teaching a skill

Use this when: A useful process is too long for short form.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Here is the full process for [TASK]: [PASTE]. Cut it into a 60-second tutorial: which steps to show, which to compress into one line, and which to skip entirely with a note on where people can get the rest. Give me the script with timestamps and the single most common mistake to call out.”

CUSTOMIZE

[TASK] — the process

Prompt #172

INSTAGRAM & CAPTIONS

Caption Angles For One Post

Best for: Instagram creators and brands

Use this when: You have the visual and no caption.

COPY-READY PROMPT

"I am posting [DESCRIBE POST] for an audience of [AUDIENCE]. Write five captions using different angles — curiosity, pain point, transformation, authority and practical tip — each under 120 words with a clear first line that survives the 'more' cut. End each with a natural call to action. No fake income claims, no motivational clichés, maximum five hashtags."

CUSTOMIZE

[DESCRIBE POST] — the content

Prompt #173

INSTAGRAM & CAPTIONS

Hashtag Set

Best for: Creators wanting reach

Use this when: You are using the same 30 tags on everything.

COPY-READY PROMPT

"Suggest 20 hashtags for a post about [TOPIC] aimed at [AUDIENCE] in [REGION]. Split into high-volume, mid-volume and niche, and explain what each group is for. Exclude banned or spam-associated tags, and tell me which five I should use consistently as my own signature set."

CUSTOMIZE

[TOPIC] — post subject

[REGION] — your market

Prompt #174

INSTAGRAM & CAPTIONS

Story Sequence

Best for: Creators using stories to sell or teach

Use this when: Your stories are random and do not lead anywhere.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Plan a [NUMBER]-frame story sequence about [TOPIC] that ends with [ACTION]. For each frame: what is on screen, the text overlay under 15 words, and the interaction element if any. Build tension across the sequence rather than repeating the same message, and make the final ask feel earned.”

CUSTOMIZE

[ACTION] — what you want

Prompt #175

LINKEDIN POSTS

LinkedIn Post From A Real Lesson

Best for: Professionals posting for reach

Use this when: You want to post something that is not humblebragging.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Here is something that actually happened at work: [PASTE]. Write a LinkedIn post under 200 words: a specific first line, the situation in two lines, what I did, what happened, and the transferable lesson stated plainly. No ‘I am humbled’, no manufactured emotion, no one-word-per-line formatting.”

PRO TIP

If the post could have been written by someone who was not there, add more specifics.

Prompt #176

LINKEDIN POSTS

Carousel From A Long Post

Best for: LinkedIn and Instagram creators

Use this when: You have a good long post and want a carousel too.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Turn this into a [NUMBER]-slide carousel: slide one is the hook, the middle slides carry one idea each with under 20 words, and the last slide has the takeaway plus a soft call to action. Give me the text per slide and a note on the visual. Do not split sentences across slides. Post: [PASTE]”

CUSTOMIZE

[NUMBER] — slides

Prompt #177

LINKEDIN POSTS

Comment Strategy

Best for: Creators building reach without posting more

Use this when: You post consistently and nobody sees it.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“I write about [TOPIC] for [AUDIENCE]. Suggest a commenting strategy: what kinds of posts to comment on, three comment formats that add value rather than agreeing, what to never do, and a realistic 15-minute daily routine. Then write five example comments for posts about [SUBTOPIC] that would make someone check my profile.”

Prompt #178

YOUTUBE

Video Outline And Retention Plan

Best for: YouTube creators

Use this when: Your videos lose viewers in the middle.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Plan a [MINUTES]-minute video on [TOPIC] for [AUDIENCE]. Give me: the first 30 seconds written out, the section structure with a reason for the viewer to stay at each transition, where to place the two highest-value moments, and what to cut if the edit runs long. Note where a visual or demo replaces talking.”

CUSTOMIZE

[MINUTES] — video length

Prompt #179

YOUTUBE

Title And Thumbnail Concepts

Best for: YouTube creators

Use this when: Good videos with bad packaging.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“For a video about [TOPIC] aimed at [AUDIENCE], give me eight title options under 60 characters using different approaches, and for the best three, a thumbnail concept: the single image idea, up to four words of text, and how title and thumbnail complement rather than repeat each other. No all-caps shock tactics or claims the video cannot support.”

Prompt #180

YOUTUBE

Description And Chapters

Best for: YouTube creators

Use this when: You want search to find the video.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Write the description for this video: [PASTE TRANSCRIPT OR OUTLINE]. Include: a two-line summary that stands alone, timestamped chapters with descriptive names, the key terms someone would search for used naturally, and the links section structure. No keyword stuffing and no tag dumps.”

Prompt #181

CAROUSELS

Educational Carousel

Best for: Creators teaching visually

Use this when: You want to teach something in ten slides.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Design a 10-slide educational carousel on [TOPIC] for [AUDIENCE]. Slide 1 hook, slides 2–9 one concept each with a maximum of 25 words, slide 10 summary and call to action. Order the concepts so each depends on the previous one. For each slide, note the visual or diagram that would carry the point better than text.”

CUSTOMIZE

[TOPIC] — the subject

Prompt #182

NEWSLETTERS

Newsletter Issue Plan

Best for: Anyone running an email list

Use this when: Your newsletter takes four hours and reads like a blog.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“I write a [FREQUENCY] newsletter for [AUDIENCE] about [TOPIC], with [SUBSCRIBERS] subscribers. Design a repeatable issue structure: sections, the job of each, target word count, and which sections I can prepare in advance. Then write this week's issue from my material: [PASTE]. Keep the opening personal and specific.”

CUSTOMIZE

[FREQUENCY] — how often

[TOPIC] — subject

Prompt #183

NEWSLETTERS

Subject Lines That Are Not Bait

Best for: Email newsletter writers

Use this when: Open rates are falling.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Write 10 subject lines for this issue: [PASTE]. Mix approaches: specific benefit, curiosity from a real detail, number, question, and plain description. Under 50 characters, no false urgency, no ‘you won’t believe’. Then add the preview text for the top three and say what each pair promises.”

Prompt #184

NEWSLETTERS

Welcome Sequence

Best for: Creators with new subscribers

Use this when: People subscribe and never hear from you properly.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Design a five-email welcome sequence for subscribers who joined because of [LEAD MAGNET / REASON]. For each email: the purpose, the timing, the subject line, a 100-word outline, and the one action I want. Build trust first and mention my offer only in emails four and five, honestly and briefly.”

CUSTOMIZE

[LEAD MAGNET] — why they joined

Prompt #185

REPURPOSING

One Piece Into Five Formats

Best for: Creators short on time

Use this when: You made one good thing and posted it once.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Here is my long-form piece: [PASTE]. Repurpose it into: a LinkedIn post, a short-form video script, a carousel outline, a newsletter section, and three standalone quote-style posts. Each must work independently and lead with a different part of the content, not the same opening rephrased.”

PRO TIP

Space these across two weeks. The same idea in different formats is not repetition to your audience.

Prompt #186

REPURPOSING

Old Content Refresh

Best for: Creators with an archive

Use this when: Your best post from last year is buried.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Here is a piece I published [TIME] ago: [PASTE]. Tell me what still holds, what is now outdated, and what I have learned since that would change it. Then rewrite it as a fresh piece for [PLATFORM], with a note on what makes this version worth posting rather than a repost.”

Prompt #187

REPURPOSING

Comment Section Into Content

Best for: Creators with an engaged audience

Use this when: Your audience keeps asking the same things.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Here are the questions and comments I receive most: [PASTE]. Group them by underlying need, identify the three that deserve a full piece of content each, and outline those pieces. Then write short reply templates for the ones that only need an answer, in a friendly tone that does not sound copy-pasted.”

Prompt #188

COMMUNITY & COMMENTS

Reply To Criticism

Best for: Anyone with a public profile

Use this when: Someone criticised your post and you want to respond well.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Here is a critical comment on my post: [PASTE]. Tell me first whether it contains a legitimate point. Then write three possible replies: a genuine engagement if there is substance, a short neutral acknowledgement, and a polite close-the-thread reply. Never sarcastic, never defensive, and tell me when not replying is the better choice.”

Prompt #189

COMMUNITY & COMMENTS

Engagement Question Bank

Best for: Creators building conversation

Use this when: Your call-to-action questions get no replies.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Give me 15 questions I can ask my audience of [AUDIENCE] about [TOPIC] that are easy to answer in one line, specific enough to be interesting, and reveal something I could use in future content. Avoid yes/no questions and ‘what do you think?’. Group them by which stage of the audience relationship they suit.”

Prompt #190

IDEAS & ANGLES

Content Calendar For A Month

Best for: Creators wanting consistency

Use this when: You post in bursts and then disappear.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Build a one-month content calendar for [PLATFORM] at [FREQUENCY], across my pillars: [PASTE]. For each slot: the pillar, the format, the working title, and the effort level. Mix high-effort and low-effort pieces so the plan survives a busy week, and mark the two pieces that matter most if I can only do two.”

CUSTOMIZE

[FREQUENCY] — posts per week

Prompt #191

SHORT-FORM VIDEO

Weak vs. Strong Caption Request

Best for: Any creator

Use this when: You want to see what specificity does to output.

WEAK REQUEST

“Write an Instagram caption for my course.”

BETTER PROMPT

“I am launching a ₹499 online course teaching practical AI skills to college students who have never used AI for study. Write five Instagram captions using different angles: curiosity, pain point, transformation, authority and urgency. Each under 120 words with a strong first line. Mention that the price is introductory and the course is beginner-level. No income claims, no ‘AI will replace you’ fear, no generic motivation.”

Prompt #192

IDEAS & ANGLES

Idea To Multi-Platform Campaign

Best for: Creators and small brands

Use this when: You want one idea to work everywhere without copy-pasting.

STEP 01

Sharpen

“Here is my idea: [PASTE]. Define the single claim, the audience, and the one thing they should do after seeing it.”

STEP 02

Hooks

“Write eight hooks for this claim, labelled by type, and mark the best for each platform I use.”

STEP 03

Script and long form

“Write the 45-second video script and the long-form version — newsletter or article — that goes deeper.”

STEP 04

Cut down

“Derive the carousel, the caption and three quote posts from the long form, each leading with different content.”

STEP 05

Schedule and measure

“Sequence these across two weeks and tell me which metric per platform tells me whether the idea worked.”

Prompt #193

HOOKS

Curiosity Without Clickbait

Best for: Creators who hate bait tactics

Use this when: You want opens without misleading anyone.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Here is my content: [PASTE]. Write six openings that create curiosity using only true specifics from the content — a surprising number, an unexpected constraint, a counter-intuitive result, a named mistake, a before-and-after, or a question the content genuinely answers. For each, state which part of my content pays it off.”

Prompt #194

COMMUNITY & COMMENTS

Turn Followers Into Feedback

Best for: Creators before launching something

Use this when: You want to know what your audience actually wants.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“I want to find out what my audience of [AUDIENCE] struggles with around [TOPIC] before I build [OFFER]. Design a short research approach using content: five poll or question posts, three story prompts, and one DM message. Make the questions reveal problems and current workarounds rather than asking what they would buy.”

CUSTOMIZE

[OFFER] — what you plan to build

Prompt #195

NEWSLETTERS

Re-Engagement Email

Best for: Anyone with a cold list

Use this when: Half your subscribers have stopped opening.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Write a re-engagement email for subscribers who have not opened in [MONTHS] months of my newsletter about [TOPIC]. Under 120 words: acknowledge the silence without guilt, remind them what they signed up for in one line, give them a genuine reason to stay, and make leaving easy in one click. Then give me the subject line and what to do with people who still do not open.”

Prompt #196

YOUTUBE

Script Punch-Up

Best for: Video creators with a flat draft

Use this when: Your script is informative and boring.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Here is my video script: [PASTE]. Without changing the information, make it hold attention: cut throat-clearing, tighten the first 30 seconds, add a specific example where I generalise, break up any monologue longer than 30 seconds with a question or visual, and mark where a pattern interrupt belongs. Show your cuts.”

Prompt #197

INSTAGRAM & CAPTIONS

Brand Voice Guide

Best for: Small brands and solo creators

Use this when: Your posts sound like three different people.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Here are ten pieces of my content I am happy with: [PASTE]. Extract a voice guide: tone in three adjectives with evidence, sentence style, vocabulary we use and avoid, how we open and close, how we handle humour, and five example lines rewritten wrong and right. Keep it to one page so anyone can apply it.”

Prompt #198

REPURPOSING

Client Work Into Portfolio Content

Best for: Freelancers and agencies

Use this when: You do good work you never show.

COPY-READY PROMPT

"I completed this project: [PASTE]. Turn it into content that respects client confidentiality: a process post about the approach, a lesson post about the hardest decision, and a short before-and-after piece using only what I can share. Mark anything that needs client permission and draft the permission request message."

Prompt #199

CAROUSELS

Framework Carousel

Best for: Creators with a repeatable method

Use this when: You have a method and want it to spread.

COPY-READY PROMPT

"Here is the method I use for [TASK]: [PASTE]. Turn it into a named framework with an acronym or memorable structure, then a 8-slide carousel teaching it: what it solves, the steps, an example applied to a real situation, and how to start today. Do not over-claim — if the method is simple, present it as simple."

Prompt #200

SHORT-FORM VIDEO

Series Plan

Best for: Creators wanting people to come back

Use this when: Your content has no reason to be followed.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Design a [NUMBER]-part series on [TOPIC] for [PLATFORM]: the promise of the series, what each part covers, why someone would watch part two, and how each part ends. Make each episode useful alone but better in order, and suggest the recurring format element that makes it recognisable.”

CUSTOMIZE

[NUMBER] — episodes

Prompt #201

IDEAS & ANGLES

What Not To Post

Best for: Creators with a mixed feed

Use this when: Some of your content is actively hurting you.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Here are 15 of my recent posts with their performance and my goal: [PASTE]. Identify which posts moved me toward my goal, which got engagement but attracted the wrong audience, and which were noise. Then tell me the three content types to stop making and what to do with the time instead.”

Prompt #202

LINKEDIN POSTS

Founder Update Post

Best for: Founders building in public

Use this when: You want to share progress without sounding like a pitch.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Here is what happened in my business this month, including the parts that went badly: [PASTE]. Write a build-in-public update under 250 words: one real number, one thing that worked, one thing that did not and what I learned, and what is next. No hype, no vague ‘exciting things coming’, and no asking for anything.”

Prompt #203

DM That Is Not Spam

Best for: Creators reaching out directly

Use this when: You want to message someone without being ignored.

COPY-READY PROMPT

“Write a DM to [PERSON TYPE] who posted about [TOPIC]. Under 60 words: reference their specific point, add one useful thing from my own experience, and make any ask small and optional. No compliments-as-opener, no pitch, no link in the first message. Then give me the one-line follow-up if they reply positively.”

Coding & Technology

Debug faster. Understand deeper.

Prompts for the work developers actually do: reading unfamiliar code, chasing a bug with a real stack trace, writing tests, reviewing a pull request and learning a new stack.

IN THIS PART YOU'LL FIND PROMPTS FOR

- ✓ Debugging
- ✓ Refactoring
- ✓ Testing
- ✓ APIs
- ✓ Architecture
- ✓ Code Review
- ✓ Code Explanation
- ✓ Documentation
- ✓ SQL & Data
- ✓ Git & Workflow
- ✓ Learning Programming
- ✓ Technical Interviews

Best for: Developers, students learning to code, technical teams

Business & Entrepreneurship

Test the idea before you fund it.

Validation, customer research, pricing, offers, operations and support — structured so you end up with decisions and documents, not a motivational summary.

- | | |
|-----------------------|--------------------------|
| ✓ Business Ideas | ✓ Validation |
| ✓ Market Research | ✓ Customer Research |
| ✓ Product Development | ✓ Pricing |
| ✓ Offers | ✓ SOPs & Operations |
| ✓ Customer Support | ✓ Business Communication |
| ✓ Finance Basics | ✓ Hiring |

Best for: Founders, small business owners, side-project builders

Marketing & Sales

Fewer words. More conversions.

Positioning, landing pages, ads, email sequences, sales conversations and objection handling — all written against a named audience and a real offer.

IN THIS PART YOU'LL FIND PROMPTS FOR

- ✓ Positioning & Messaging
- ✓ Ad Copy
- ✓ SEO & Search
- ✓ Objections
- ✓ Launches
- ✓ Analytics
- ✓ Landing Pages
- ✓ Email Marketing
- ✓ Sales Conversations
- ✓ Proposals
- ✓ Retention

Best for: Marketers, freelancers, founders selling their own work

Freelancing & Client Work

Get paid. Stay sane.

Proposals, scoping, pricing conversations, feedback rounds, scope creep and the awkward messages — the parts of freelancing nobody trains you for.

IN THIS PART YOU'LL FIND PROMPTS FOR

- ✓ Finding Clients
- ✓ Scoping & Estimates
- ✓ Contracts & Terms
- ✓ Client Communication
- ✓ Scope Creep
- ✓ Retainers
- ✓ Proposals
- ✓ Pricing & Rates
- ✓ Onboarding
- ✓ Feedback & Revisions
- ✓ Invoicing & Payment
- ✓ Case Studies

Best for: Freelancers, consultants, agencies, service providers

Research & Analysis

Read less. Understand more.

Prompts for structured reading, source checking, comparison, synthesis and turning a pile of material into something you can defend in a room.

- ✓ Framing Questions
- ✓ Source Evaluation
- ✓ Comparison
- ✓ Surveys & Interviews
- ✓ Critical Thinking
- ✓ Literature & Sources
- ✓ Note Synthesis
- ✓ Data Interpretation
- ✓ Reports
- ✓ Citations & Integrity

Best for: Students, analysts, researchers, anyone who reads to decide

Personal Productivity & Planning

Plans you actually follow.

Goals, weekly planning, habits, focus, money, learning projects and reviews — prompts that account for the fact that your week is already full.

- ✓ Goals
- ✓ Habits
- ✓ Reviews & Retros
- ✓ Money & Budgeting
- ✓ Decisions
- ✓ Weekly & Daily Planning
- ✓ Focus & Deep Work
- ✓ Learning Projects
- ✓ Health Routines
- ✓ Digital Organisation

Best for: Anyone trying to get more out of a finite week

Everyday AI

The small stuff, handled.

Travel, forms, shopping decisions, home projects, family logistics, gifts, events and the everyday admin that quietly takes your evenings.

IN THIS PART YOU'LL FIND PROMPTS FOR

- ✓ Travel & Trips
- ✓ Shopping Decisions
- ✓ Events & Celebrations
- ✓ Money Admin
- ✓ Hobbies & Skills
- ✓ Home & Repairs
- ✓ Food & Cooking
- ✓ Forms & Admin
- ✓ Family & Relationships
- ✓ Gifts & Occasions

Best for: Everyone — no technical or professional context needed

The one-page prompt cheat sheet

TO GET SHORTER OUTPUT

"Maximum [NUMBER] words. No preamble, no summary at the end."

TO GET OPTIONS

"Give me 3 versions with different angles, and label the angle."

TO REMOVE FLUFF

"Cut adjectives, buzzwords and motivational language. Plain, specific sentences only."

TO AVOID INVENTED FACTS

"Use only the information I gave you. If something is missing, list it as a question instead of assuming."

TO GO DEEPER

"Ask me up to 5 questions before answering, then answer."

TO IMPROVE A DRAFT

"Critique this against [CRITERIA], list the 3 weakest points, then rewrite fixing only those."

TO CHANGE THE TONE

"Rewrite for [AUDIENCE] at [READING LEVEL], tone: [TONE]. Keep the facts identical."

TO MAKE IT REUSABLE

"Turn this into a reusable template with [PLACEHOLDERS] and a short usage note."

Stack these. Any prompt in this book plus two lines from this page is usually enough to fix a disappointing answer.

Build your own prompt in five lines

When nothing in the library matches your task exactly, write it yourself in this order.

- | | |
|-----------------------|---|
| 01 ROLE | Who should judge this work? “You are a hiring manager for backend roles at a mid-size product company.” |
| 02 CONTEXT | The real situation, in two or three sentences, plus any material to work from. |
| 03 TASK | One clear verb and one clear outcome. Analyse, rewrite, plan, compare, critique, generate. |
| 04 CONSTRAINTS | Length, tone, audience, what to avoid, what not to invent. |
| 05 FORMAT | The exact shape you want back: table, numbered list, 3 options, subject + body. |

WORKED EXAMPLE

“You are a senior content editor. I run a two-person design studio and write one newsletter a month for 400 subscribers, mostly startup founders. Rewrite the draft below so the opening earns the next 30 seconds. Keep it under 300 words, no motivational filler, keep every fact as written. Return the rewritten draft, then a 3-bullet note on what you changed and why.”

Prompt improvement checklist

Run this when an answer is close but not good enough.

- ✓ Is the situation in the prompt? Add the two or three facts a colleague would need to do this task.

- ✓ Did you give the raw material? Notes, transcript, code, job description — paste it rather than describe it.

- ✓ Is the audience named? A first-year student and a technical reviewer need different answers.

- ✓ Is the length set? Word or item counts prevent both padding and thin answers.

- ✓ Did you say what to avoid? One “do not” line removes most of the rewriting.

- ✓ Is the format explicit? Name the shape: table with columns, 5 bullets, subject plus body.

- ✓ Have you blocked invention? For anything factual: “use only what I provided; flag gaps as questions.”

- ✓ Did you ask for a second pass? “List your 3 weakest points, then fix them.”

- ✓ Did you save the winning version? Keep it with your context filled in; it becomes your own template.

Check the output before you use it

AI drafts fast; it does not verify. Treat every answer as a capable first draft from someone who has not checked their sources.

It can be factually wrong

Confident tone is not accuracy. Numbers, dates and names need checking.

It can be out of date

Prices, policies, syllabus changes, API versions and laws move faster than training data.

It can invent sources

Citations, papers and case studies may not exist. Open every link before you rely on it.

It can miss your context

It does not know your institution, client or market unless you tell it.

It can carry bias

Especially in hiring, evaluation and anything about people. Review before acting.

It should not hold your secrets

Do not paste passwords, keys, client confidential data or anyone's personal records.

HIGH-STAKES TOPICS

For medical, legal, financial, academic and employment decisions, verify independently and involve a qualified professional. Also never present AI-written work as your own where your institution or employer forbids it, and never let a prompt add experience, results or credentials you do not have.

Thank you for being part of this journey

You do not need all 203 prompts. You need the ten that fit the work you do every week — find those, edit them until they sound like you, and keep them somewhere you can reach in five seconds.

That is the whole skill. The library is just a shortcut to it.

“Same prompts.
More possibilities.”
